CONVICT FLEES STATE PRISON ON TRAIN

ESCAPES AS GUARD TURNS BACK

"Bad Man" Serving Fourth Term Gets Away Despite Hurried Search

Neseb Abdallah, known as the "Syrian bad man," made a sensational escape from the State Prison at Charlestown today.

He leaped a passing freight train while at work in the railroad yards of the prison and was gone when a guard who had temporarily left Abdallah returned.

Warden Shattuck offered $100 for his capture and sent a description of the man to Boston and surrounding cities.

Abdallah is garbed in the prison suit of gray with overalls over the jacket.

He was serving the last year of a 3½-year sentence for burglary and is wanted in half a dozen cities in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

HIS FOURTH TERM.

He is a convict with a bad reputation, serving his fourth term at Charlestown and having served a sentence at the State prison in Connecticut.

He is a shoe worker by trade, but a key man and house burglar by profession.

Despite the fact that he had broken a parole recently after serving two and a half years of his present sentence, he had been made a semi-trusty and was at work outside the prison wall with five other prisoners today when came his dash for liberty.

John Courtney, prison officer, had been superintending Abdallah and his companions unloading a freight car at the prison storehouse adjoining the Boston & Maine tracks. He stepped inside the store shed for a hammer to open a fallen crate. When he returned three minutes later only five prisoners stood grouped before him.

"Where's Abdallah?" shouted the guard, alarmed.

Nobody spoke.

Wading about a bend down the railroad tracks was a fast freight train.

The men, prison-fashion, looked in the opposite direction.

Courtney herded the men inside the prison yard, then sounded an alarm. A hurried search for miles about only strengthened the proof of Abdallah's departure.

Abdallah came originally, records show, from Lowell. His present sentence was for breaking and entering and was given him in the Superior Court in Cambridge on September 20, 1919. It was for from 2½ to 3½ years. The two and a half-year period served, the "bad man" was paroled. He broke the trust reposed in him and was arrested and sent back to serve the remaining year.

He is described as 29 years old, of dark complexion, dark hair, smooth shaven, standing 5 ft. 3½ inches tall and weighing about 142 pounds.

At a hearing before the Commission on the Necessaries of Life he agreed to suspend his rent increases until September 1 and to give tenants until that date to find new quarters. Tarplin had raised the rent from $7.50 to $9.50 a week. He ordered the tenants out when they refused to pay the increase.

Collins Meeting Stopped by Troops

GIRL FAKED KIDNAP STORY

Miss Reagan of Natick Says She Was Alone in a Boston Hotel

Weeping bitterly, pretty nineteen-year-old Esther Reagan broke down at her home, No. 17 Sherman street, Natick, today, and confessed that her story of having been kidnaped and held prisoner in a Chinatown building from last Wednesday to last Saturday night was fiction.

To Sergeant Thomas Harvey and Patrolman William H. Kearney of Boston and Patrolman David Church of the Natick force and Dr. M. S. Burke of Natick, the family physician of the Reagans, the girl told her real story.

It differed widely from the first tale she had told her parents and the police. Instead of having been shoved into the sedan at Essex street and Harrison avenue, while on her way to the South Station, and taken to a Harrison avenue building, she had spent the time in the Bowdoin Square Hotel.

"After getting the money that was due me for ten days' work in a department store in Boston," she told Harvey, "I started for the South station to take the train home. On the way I thought I would go to another store and buy some things I wanted.

MONEY MISSING.

"When I got there and opened my handbag I found that except for $13 my mother had given me to buy a commutation ticket, all my money was gone.

"That scared me badly. I was afraid to go home for fear of the scolding I felt sure I would get for being so careless. So I went to the Bowdoin Square Hotel and got a cheap room. That was Wednesday night. I stayed alone in the hotel until Saturday evening, when I made up my mind that I would go back home and tell them I had been kidnaped.

"Of course I had thought out the story while I was there alone in the hotel and had all the details planned. I hated to tell a fib to my mother and father, but thought it would not harm them.

"Besides it was the only way I could explain how I had come to lose the money they knew I had with me. So I told them that after the three men had released me they gave me back my handbag with all the money gone except a few dollars.

GLAD ITS OVER.

"All the time I was at the hotel I was alone. I never went out except to get something to eat. I am glad it's over and that mother knows all about it."

Mrs. Reagan, who had expressed perfect confidence in the kidnaped story of the girl, refused to make any statement following her daughter's confession.

"We have had publicity enough as it is," she said. "We'll just try to forget this whole thing."

POLICE POST TO GO TO WILSON OR NICHOLS

Governor Cox is ready to name the next police commissioner of Boston to succeed the late Edwin U. Curtis.

He will be Malcolm E. Nichols, collector of Internal Revenue, or Herbert A. Wilson, Building Commissioner for the City of Boston, and former State Senator.

In certain quarters today it was regarded as almost certain that the selection would be Wilson.

It was pointed out that whereas Nichols is a Republican holding a good post under the Republican national administration, and virtually certain to hold office while the Republicans are in power, Wilson is a Republican holding office under a Democratic Mayor, and at the mercy of any political shake-up.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD ON STREET CORNER

Mrs. Jennie Gilman, thirty-four years old, of East Canton street, South End, dropped dead at West Dedham and Washington streets today. The body was turned over to Medical Examiner Wattes, who will perform an autopsy.

ACCUSES ALLEN IN R. R. DEAL

Codman and Crooker Charge He Protected Savings Banks and State Street Interests

Charges that Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen shielded certain State street interests and made a "pet bank" of the International Trust Company and had allowed it to make loans on personal securities beyond what the law allows were made at the public hearing today in Room No. 436, State House, by speakers opposing confirmation of the reappointment of the bank commissioner.

The hearing was jammed. A throng unable to get in overflowed into the corridor. There were frequent outbursts of applause, several interruptions, and when Judge Louis Swig took the floor continual clashes between him and Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, acting as chairman.

Charges were made by Edmund D. Codman, Conrad W. Crooker and Judge Swig. Simon Swig, vice-president of the closed Tremont Trust Company, who had been expected to touch off the main fireworks of the hearing, showed himself for but a few minutes, then left.

Charges of Codman and Crooker concerned the Hampden Railroad Company scandal. They declared that his stand in the Hampden Railroad case was enough to warrant his removal, that he could have taken criminal action and failed, that he guarded the savings banks and a "certain State crowd" at the expense of Hampden investors.

Swig charged that Allen had played favorites and had "permitted the International Trust Company to make loans on personal securities beyond what the law allows," that it was Allen's "pet bank."

A bit of sally brought laughter to

Sweeping Changes in Veterans Bureau of New England

Washington, April 3 (By International News Service).—Dr. A. E. Brides of Boston, who is in charge of the activities of the United States Veterans Bureau in New England, arrived in Washington today to confer with Director Forbes concerning numerous complaints that have been made against his administration.

A sweeping reorganization of the bureau's activities in New England was promised today, but was stated that no decision had been reached as to Brides' dismissal.

MAGRATH FILES CLARK DEATH REPORT

Medical Examiner Calls Case of Back Bay Divorcee a Suicide

Medical Examiner George B. Magrath today files his long-awaited report on the deaths of Pauline Virginia Clark, Back Bay divorcee, and Otto Halbor Larsen, her Technology suitor, both of whom, according to Magrath, committed suicide by taking poison.

One copy of the report was given Judge Wilfred Bolster of the Municipal Court and another to District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien. A third copy was given Inspector James A. Dennessy, homicide expert of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, who has been gathering evidence in the mystery.

With filing of the report it is now expected a date for the inquest will shortly be set by Judge Bolster. The inquest will be private. It was thought today the hearing might be set for a week from next Thursday.

Summonses for witnesses in the tragedy have been prepared by Inspector Dennessy and they will be mailed when the inquest date is announced.

District Attorney O'Brien said the medical examiner's report would be kept secret, as the case was still a subject of judicial investigation.

This continues the veil of mystery which has surrounded the tragedy since Miss Clark drained a vial of poison at a party in her Newbury street apartment on the night of March 16 and slumped down, lifeless, at the feet of her guests.

SHOTS ARE FIRED IN MAYO

Crowd Stampeded and Many Persons Trampled on at Castlebar

Mullingar, County Meath, Ireland, April 3.—An incident from which sensational developments are anticipated here occurred this morning when 100 Free State troops marched to the gates of the barracks occupied by Irish Republican army adherents of Eamon De Valera and were refused admission.

Dublin, April 3.—(By Associated Press)—The meeting addressed by Michael Collins at Castlebar, County Mayo, last night was stopped by members of the Fourth Western Division of the Irish Republican Army after stormy scenes in which a woman was wounded by a bullet, according to accounts reaching Dublin

The chief of the provisional government and his party returned to their hotel, and the officer who had proclaimed the meeting at an end followed, declaring that none would be allowed to leave until Collins and his friends had surrendered their arms.

The accounts received here do not state whether the Collins party was disarmed, merely saying that "some people who left the hotel were searched." The telegraph wires around Castlebar were cut, and when the newspaper correspondents there boarded a train for Athlone they Beckley, W. Va., April 3.—The first shooting in the West Virginia mine fields since the strike was called was reported from Royal, Raleigh County, today. Wheeling, W. Va., April 3.—The first break in operation of non-union mines in the Panhandle counties of West Virginia came today when two mines in Marshall County suspended operations, with the forces joining the strike.

There was no break in the non-union coal miners' ranks in the Logan and Mingo County fields today, operators declared. They said coal was being mined at capacity at all points.

IRISH TROOPS STOP COLLINS MEETING; FORCE LEADERS OUT

3,200 SOLDIERS QUIT THEIR ALLEGIANCE TO DAIL

were ordered by two officers to go to the barracks.

The newspaper men were conveyed to the barracks in automobiles, where they found A. McCabe, a member of the Dail Eireann, with Commandant Kilroy and his staff.

BYRNE IS HELD.

The commandant stated that McCabe had admitted he was the first to draw a revolver at the meeting. McCabe then, in the presence of the correspondents, said he believed he was the first to draw, the dispatches say.

A Dublin man, said to be Charles Byrne, a member of the Collins party, was arrested and accused of the shooting. Collins subsequently told the representative of the Irish Independent, a Dublin newspaper, that he had visited Byrne in the barracks and found him in a cell with only a plank for a bed, and no bedding.

He said he had asked Commandant Kilroy to parole Byrne, Collins to be responsible for him, but that the request was refused.

Mrs. Fogarty, proprietress of the Commercial Hotel, Castlebar, was wounded in the shoulder, presumably.

Official figures given out today show that 3,220 men left the five Dublin battalions of the Irish Republican army yesterday afternoon, marching to Smithfield, where they took an oath of allegiance to the republic, freeing themselves from any further responsibility to the Dail Eireann.

ROADS WERE BLOCKED.

The correspondent here of the London Evening News, telegraphing his newspaper a description of the Castlebar meeting, says all the roads to Castlebar were blocked by trees and that automobiles moving towards the town were stopped by armed men, who even ripped up the railway tracks to prevent the arrival of the special train from the surrounding towns. The meeting was consequently delayed until 1 p. m. The crowd numbered 2,000 persons, among whom were many hostile to Collins, who spoke from lorries used as a platform. His speech was frequently interrupted and then an attempt was made to rush the lorries, says the account, and a supporter of Collins drew a revolver. Others produced revolvers also, upon which the crowd was stampeded, women fainted and several persons were trampled upon. A young man was pursued into a side street and a number of shots were fired.

At this point, adds the correspondent, an officer jumped upon the lorry which made up the platform and declared the meeting adjourned in the interest of peace.

Flappers 'Old Stuff,' Says Pastor, Who Quotes Bible

Pawtucket, R. I., April 3.—Egotistical little flapper, did you think you were new? Or you, shifter?

Then listen to the Rev. Arthur J. Watson, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. He says you are older than the hills.

You are antedated by the flappers of ancient Judea. With your unbuckled galoshes you are as a tintype compared to a cabinet photo. Why, those girlies had rings on their fingers and bells on their toes.

Reads Dr. Watson from Scripture: "The daughters of Zion are haughty and walk with outstretched necks and wanton eyes, mincing as they go and making a tinkling noise with their feet, with anklets and pendants and mufflers and perfume boxes and the rings and nose jewels."

Now will you be good?

HIDE MUNITIONS AFTER IRISH SEIZURE

British Craft Loooted of Large Supply, Which Is Cached On Coast

London, April 3 (By the Associated Press).—The British ordnance steamer Upton, which was seized off the Irish coast last week by raiders, who stowed its cargo away in some unknown place, contained 400 rifles, not 20,000 as has been reported; 700 revolvers, 29 machine guns and 500,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, together with a small quantity of explosives, it was declared in the House of Commons today by Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies. The Admiralty has ordered an inquiry.

A Dublin dispatch Sunday giving an account of the parade of the Dublin battalion of the Irish Republican army, when more than 3,000 men marched away to Smithfield and took an oath of allegiance to the republic, quoted a statement by Roderick O'Connor, one of the leaders of the republican movement, in connection with this seizure.

Mr. O'Connor, in addressing the men, declared that Richard Mulcahy, the Dail Eireann Minister of Defence, had caused the seizure of the Republican army's munitions and grenade factories in Dublin and elsewhere, but that the Republicans had replied to this by seizing at Cork a British ship loaded with explosives and machine guns.

Mr. Churchill said the vessel was captured in the highest piratical fashion by a party of conspirators hostile to the provisional government.

"The fact that such an elaborate conspiracy could be set on foot in Cork shows the provisional government control of the Cork district is practically non-existent," he continued. "This is remarkable, in view of the fact that public opinion in Cork is overwhelmingly in favor of the treaty."

Belfast, April 3.—Three thousand business men met in private session today and inaugurated a fund for Ulster propaganda, as was recommended recently by Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, former chief of the general staff.

JAMES MULHAIR, ONSET HOTEL OWNER, IS DEAD

Onset, April 3.—James Mulhair, proprietor of the Marcy House here, and for years one of the best known hotel men on the Cape, is dead at his home following an attack of acute indigestion. He was sixty-one years old, and is survived by a widow and a daughter. Mulhair formerly managed the Brockton House and the Hotel Onset. He was also formerly connected in the hotel business at Brockton and Providence.

Washington, April 3 (By International news Service). — An unsuccessful attempt was made this afternoon to rob the Merchants' Trust Company Bank at Fifteenth and H streets, just across the street from the United States Treasury. Three men entered the bank. Crowding around the teller's window, they made a concerted grab for all the currency in sight and fled. Only $2,000 was obtained and this was dropped in the flight. Police captured one of the men.

Lawrence Clergy Are Named in Peace Move

Lawrence, April 3.—The City Council, of which Mayor Daniel W. Mahony is head, today decided to initiate action looking to a settlement of the strike. It was voted to appoint a citizens' committee which should address mill owners and strikers to present their sides of the controversy, and to make an effort to find common ground for conferences. The action taken at the regular meeting of the city government was preceded by discussion in which there was reference to absentee ownership of the mills, with the remark that, while it is continued, there could be no real understanding of the workers' side.

The Mayor decided to have the committee one of clergymen exclusively and named the following:

Rev. James T. O'Reilly, St. Mary's (R. C.), chairman; Rev. John J. Gilday, SS. Patrick's (R. C.); Rev. Emil Bertrand, St. Anne's (R. C.); Rev. Donald H. Gerish, Central (M. E.); Rev. Malcolm E. ALCOHOLISM WRONGLY LAID TO HENRY F. KANE

Owing to an error for which the Boston Police Department has assumed full responsibility, Henry F. Kane, of No. 713 East Fifth street, South Boston, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 96 Stanford street, was reported in the Boston American of March 25, to be the victim of gas poisoning and alcoholism, when as a matter of fact the victim was an employe of Mr. Kane.

The employe was found unconscious in the restaurant at 3:20 a. m. by Patrolman Carney who sent him to the Relief Hospital. Patrolman Carney had to depend on a waiter for identification and other information and reports that the waiter told him the victim was Henry F. Kane, "the boss," when the latter was at home in bed.

The Boston American is pleased to make this correction.

ARGUE ALLEN LARCENY CASE WEDNESDAY

Attorney-General Seeks to Have Indictment Against Him Quashed

The plea of abatement filed by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen against an indictment which a Suffolk County Grand Jury brought against him for larceny of $155 from a client will be argued in the Superior Court on Wednesday.

This was decided today by Judge Fessenden.

Allen's plea asserts that there was no ground for the bringing of the indictment. If his plea is granted the charge against him will be quashed.

Judge Fessenden set the date for the hearing after a conference in the lobby with Attorneys William Flaherty and Herbert Parker, representing Allen, and District Attorney O'Brien and his assistant, Daniel M. Lyons. Allen's attorneys asked a speedy hearing on the matter.

The indictment charges Allen with larceny of $155 from a Mrs. Nellie T. Beck, a former client. The indictment was returned while former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier was in office.

GRANITE PLANTS CLOSED BY WALKOUT

Cutters' Leader Says 5,000 Men Are Affected by Wage Dispute

James Duncan, president of the Granite Cutters' International Association, said today at Quincy that 5,000 union employes in eighteen New England granite centres were affected by the organization's action Saturday in rejecting a working agreement providing a wage cut, and in declaring that the men would not resume work until a contract had been signed.

Mr. Duncan asserted, however, that he was without information as to how many union employes failed to report today. The producers' board of control, representing three large employers' organizations, announced on Saturday that the "open shop" would be put into effect in its sheds immediately.

Concord, N. H., April 3.—Concord's granite industry was virtually at a standstill today. Practically all workers appeared in the sheds and quarries.

Westerly, R. I., April 3.—Granite quarries and cutting plants here were closed today. About 375 men are affected.

ORD 'OBEY' LEFT OUT OF CEREMONY, MRS. WHITE DECLARES

HUSBAND RULED HER, SHE SAYS

Didn't Want That Relationship, but Soon Found She Had to Mind, She Tells Court

The word "obey" was left out of the ceremony by which Nora K. Kent of Buffalo became the wife of Henry White, wealthy Boston clubman and former partner in the Lee Higginson banking concern, according to testimony given today by Mrs. White at the hearing of her separate support suit.

The word was omitted at her insistence, she said.

"I didn't think it was proper between husband and wife," she said. Nevertheless, Mrs. White added, she was throughout her married life obliged to obey her husband "absolutely."

"I didn't want that sort of relationship," she said, "but I soon learned that I had to obey Mr. White anyhow."

This testimony was given before Acting Justice White in Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge. The hearings on Mrs. White's suit were resumed today after they had been suspended last week owing to the illness of Defence Counsel Walter I. Badger.

QUARREL OVER SCHOOL.

Mrs. White said that a plentiful source of friction between herself and her husband was her sister, Charlotte Kent, whom she said her husband charged with exercising an undue influence over the children. He was also very jealous of her mother, she said.

They also found themselves at odds when the question of schooling for their small daughter, Harriet, arose. Mrs. White wanted to send the girl to the exclusive Winsor School, but she said that White objected on the ground that it would "make a snob of her."

He relented and allowed the step to be taken, she added, when she herself became dangerously ill.

Mrs. White was on the stand throughout the entire morning. Under direct examination by her attorney, Robert G. Dodge, she declared her wealthy husband had frequently made it plain to her his tired of the marital relation. She quoted from a letter which she said he sent her not long after their separation, which occurred approximately eighteen months ago. The excerpt she read was:

"I have reached the limit of my endurance. After all these years of gross injustice there is no solution possible except an absolute divorce. I have so instructed my attorney."

ACCUSES HIM OF CRUELTY.

Mrs. White attempted to bear out her charge of cruelty by repeating conversations which she said she had had with her daughter Harriet, in the presence of her daughter Harriet.

"You have played your last game of," she said he told her on one occasion. "You and your sister have reached the end. You'll both get what's coming to you."

At this point, Mrs. White said, the little daughter Harriet interjected:

"I hope that what's coming to mamma will be nice."

To which White is said to have replied grimly:

"It won't be."

Then, turning to his wife, White is said to have remarked:

"I have turned against you, your sister and your daughter."

Mrs. White said that she was not born or reared in luxurious surroundings, and that she herself was not wealthy at the time of their marriage, and that, she said, he was living on the income of a $60,000 bequest from his father.

HER INCOME.

In regard to her own finances, Mrs. White said that she owns stocks and bonds valued at $123,000. These gave her an income of about $5,400 yearly, she said, which is coupled with an income of some $13,000 annually which she receives from an interest she owns in a Buffalo department store.

South End Widow Who Is Dying From Effects of Gas

MRS. EMILE JOHNSON

2 WOMEN ARE GAS POISONING VICTIMS

Found Unconscious in Lodging House Rooms in South End and Roxbury

Gas sent two Boston women from lodging houses to the City Hospital. One of them, Mrs. Emile Johnson, thirty-two years old, a widow, is not expected to live.

Mrs. Johnson was found unconscious in a room at No. 29 Rollins street, South End, by John Hadad, proprietor of the place. He smelled gas, and tracing the odor to her room found the door locked. He got in through a fire escape.

Gas was flowing from two open jets. The police believe that wind blew the lights out during the night. Mrs. Johnson has a sister living in South Boston.

She is well-known as an amateur swimmer and last Summer took part in the Boston American's big water carnival in the Charles River. She has a twelve-year-old daughter living with friends out of town.

Miss Nellie Blye, sixty-five years old, the other gas victim, was found on the floor of her room at No. 159 Warren avenue, Roxbury. A tube connecting a wall bracket and a stove had been disconnected.

NURSE UPSET AS HER TRIAL REOPENS

Olivia Stone Cries Out Against "Hounding" of Assistant District Attorney

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 3.—Agitated because she had learned her aged mother in Tompkinsville, Kr., had heard at last of her plight, Miss Olivia M. P. Stone resumed the witness stand for further cross-examination today at her trial for the murder of Ellis Guy Kinkead, former corporation counsel of Cincinnati.

Assistant District Attorney Warbasse reopened his attack on her story of betrayal by K.nkead, by demanding whether she knew James K. Clark, former United States attorney at Cincinnati.

"I don't know him. I don't know him," Miss Stone cried, bursting in to tears.

"I'd rather you'd take my life than keep hounding me this way."

Court was adjourned for ten minutes while Miss Stone regained her composure.

Then Warbasse pointed out Mr. Clark, who sat in the courtroom, and repeated his question.

Miss Stone insisted she did not know him.

Opening his case, Warbasse had indicated that he would be asked to testify concerning a Mann Act charge Miss Stone sought to bring against Kinkead. Clark, he said, declined to press the charge, telling Miss Stone there was better ground for such a charge against her.

Miss Stone learned her mother had heard of the case last night, when a letter of sympathy came from Tomkinsville. Attendants at Raymond Street Jail said the prisoner spent a bad night bemoaning the fact she had been unable longer to keep news of her trouble from her mother.

LETTER TO KINKEAD.

Warbasse asked Miss Stone to identify a letter to Kinkead dated Cincinnati, May 22, 1919, which said: "My pride, I am glad to tell you, has come back. You know and your friends know, you are unworthy of me. I would not have you if you were the last man on earth."

She identified the letter as hers, and then identified several other letters of similar import.

Warbasse then referred to her earlier life in Nashville, Tenn., asking her if she had not lived at No. 112 Sixth avenue, Nashville, in 1906. She said she had.

"Do you recall introducing to A. Mr. Saury a man named Selby as your husband?" he asked.

"God knows I say I did not," exclaimed the witness fervidly.

"Do you recall a letter carrier named Hall?" he asked, "and also as your new address number 1001 Eighth avenue?" the prosecution continued.

When she replied in the negative, Warbasse pounded his desk in the courtroom and asked if she did not remember him.

TESTIMONY CAUSES LAUGHTER.

"I don't know that anyone thought he might be one of my husbands," she replied.

The remark brought a general titter from spectators, and Justice Appleall pounded his gavel, declaring his courtroom was "not a vaudeville or movies show."

Warbasse next asked Miss Stone to identify Chief of Police Beman of Nashville, whom he called into the courtroom. But she insisted she did not know him.

"Do you recall what 1001 Eighth avenue, Nashville, was in 1906?" Mr. Warbasse asked.

"Don't you know it was a house of ill repute?"

"I don't know anything about it, and I never lived in such a place in my life," Miss Stone declared, weeping.

Warbasse indicated he would call Mr. Nashville witnesses to testify.

IDENTIFY BODY OF GIRL FOUND ON BEACH

Norfolk, Va., April 3.—The body of a young woman, found on the beach at Ocean View, was identified today as that of Miss Ruth Mercer, formerly Miss Ruth Geneyan of Chicago. Her husband, Edward W. Mercer, until recently was attached to the Coast Guard cutter Manning.

According to the police he could not be located today.

Mrs. Mercer was seen alive Saturday night, and physicians declared the body had not been in the water more than ten hours.

While indications are that she was assaulted before she entered the water, none of the bruises on her face and body were of such a nature that they would have caused her death, a jury formed of the jurors of the coroner's jury was that she came to her death by drowning.

ALLEN ACCUSED BY CODMAN IN HAMPDEN RAILROAD COMPANY SCANDAL

the audience when Judge Swig announced Allen as "telling me" in his report on the condition of the closed trust companies.

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller, acting as chairman: "I object to the use of the word 'lies.'"

Judge Swig: "I am surprised, Mr. Fuller, that a man of your vocabulary should raise such an objection."

Judge Swig, who had consumed more than twice the half-hour allotted to each witness, requested that he be given more time. Chairman Fuller objected. Whereupon a spectator arose and shouted:

"What difference does it make how much time the witness takes? This Council was elected by the people to protect the people. This is the people's case. Let the witnesses have all the time they want."

The crowd cheered.

DEMAND TRUTH.

John J. Dixon, head of the People's Protective League, then jumped to his feet:

"Let us have the truth of the thing," he exclaimed. "Somebody is telling falsehoods. If Allen is right the bankers should be sent to jail. If the bankers are right then Allen should be taken out on the Common and shot. Give us the truth."

Judge Swig's remarks brought outbursts of applause so often that the hearing became so disorderly that the audience was warned it would be adjourned and removed with the public excluded in the council chamber.

It was originally slated for that room, but owing to the size of the crowd the legislative hearing room was obtained.

Chairman Fuller, in calling the meeting to order, announced that the burden of proof of Bank Commissioner Allen's unfitness rested with the petitioners and that no immunity would be granted. Allen was recently reappointed by Governor Channing H. Cox.

Those stating they desired to oppose the confirmation were Dixon, Codman, Crooker, Benjamin Swig, Louis Swig and James Thayer. The witnesses favoring the confirmation of Allen's appointment were Leader Gordon, Max D. Kinsbin, Jerome F. Brock, Representative Merle D. Chevers and Bernard W. Macnamee.

Codman was the first of the opponents to speak.

"I believe Allen did right in closing the Tremont Trust Company and the other banks," he declared, "but I believe he is unfit to hold office any longer and should be removed at once.

"STATE STREET CROWD."

"His stand in the Hampden Railroad case is enough to warrant his removal. There was plenty of evidence in that scandal for Allen to have taken criminal action, but he never did. He guarded the savings banks and a certain State street crowd at the expense of the Hampden investors.

"I believe that if he was anxious to protect trust company depositors he should show an equal interest in savings banks depositors. In fact, I believe the latter are deserving of even better protection."

Conrad W. Crooker supplemented the statements of Codman and characterized the Hampden deal as a "mighty flimsy affair" and the "dummy" of Frank S. Moseley & Co.

"Allen should have pressed criminal charges in this case, and he was urged to do so by many personal appeals to him to act in the matter, but he persistently refused to do so.

"This deal was a promotion proposition by the Frank S. Moseley Company. At no time did the road ever have more than $7,000 of its own money invested. By the issuing and sale of stock to the public, however, it raised more than $4,000,000. Practically all of this was worthless.

"$1,000,000 LOSS."

"Allen knew this—he was so informed by former Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill and others. He knew the savings banks lost about $1,000,000 alone through the deal. He knew there were twenty indictments against those who engineered the deal returned by the Middlesex County grand jury. But he never acted.

"I claim that he had ample evidence to act upon and that he should have done so—that he should have brought those responsible for this tremendous loss to public investors to justice. I say he is unfit for office because he neglected to protect the interests of these people.

"Had Allen acted the savings banks might have recouped a large part of their losses. It was up to Allen to do this. The banks could have entered claim against the road and collected. There is no doubt of that. Allen blocked them by his attitude.

"He declined to allow the banks to proceed and took a stand in defence of a company that a former attorney had declared was worthless.

"Though every loan made to this company was a bad one, still Allen upheld the old Colony Trust Company to play with $600,000 worth of the company's notes."

The speaker asked that Allen had allowed the Commonwealth Trust Company to transfer to one Gordon Dexter notes worth $280,000 for one dollar collateral.

He further said that it was a significant fact that when the Hampden crash occurred Allen allowed a friend of his to step in as receiver for the road.

"I say it is a deliberate falsehood on Allen's part when he asserts that he had warned and criticized the officers of the Tremont Trust Company before he closed its doors," he said.

"Allen gave the bank no warning at all. I call on him to prove this otherwise.

"I have been hampered in preparing my evidence in this matter by Allen's evasive stand. He has refused to answer my questions or to let me see the books of the bank. I ask if this is fair treatment—if Allen is playing square."

The speaker enumerated some of the high officials of the Tremont Trust Company, former United States District Attorney Asa P. French, Attorney-General Dana Malone, Lieutenant-Governor Fuller, Commissioner Charles W. Lavy, Gilbert H. Noyes, and others, and declared that had all been "defamed" by Allen's sweeping charges against the institution.

"The only real complaint he seems to have ever been able to support," he said, "is that the bank did some advertising and borrowed on its own accounts from one department to another."

CHARGES FAVORITISM.

"I charge," said Judge Swig, referring to the International Trust Company, "that the International Trust Company has borrowed on personal securities beyond what the law allows."

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller: "That is far afield."

Judge Swig: "I am offering this evidence to show that Joseph T. Allen plays favorites. But, if I am not permitted to show this why I will have to bow to your ruling."

The ruling provoked applause.

Councillor William J. Foley: "Do you mean to say that Bank Commissioner Allen has permitted banks to be made beyond the legal limit?"

Judge Swig: "I do."

Foley: "I think the witness should be allowed to proceed with this evidence."

Chairman Fuller ruled it out.

Swig then resumed his testimony and it was punctuated with frequent clashes with Chairman Fuller.

ANSWERS ACCUSATIONS.

In reply to a question by Councillor Smith, Judge Swig said:

"I realize that I am before a jury that would like to convict me. You may choke me off, you may deprive me of a fair hearing but I at least have the right to impress fair-minded persons present."

He continued to answer accusations made by Bank Commissioner Allen in his report to the Legislature relative to the Tremont Trust Company. Explaining the history of the Schooner Tremont he declared that when President Wilson was calling for more ships during the war two citizens started building the schooner to fulfill the Government's call.

They received a loan, he said, from the Tremont Trust Company, but that financial complications arose and the schooner was not completed until after the war, becoming a drug on the market."

PASTORS ANGRY OVER ATTACK ON MASSEE

Editor Diffenbach Stirs Up Hornets' Nest by Slur on Tremont Temple Head

Denunciation of Rev. Jasper C. Massee, who is to be pastor of Tremont Temple, by Albert C. Diffenbach, editor of the Christian Register, speaking at Ford Hall last night, came up today for discussion at a meeting of baptist ministers at Chapman Hall.

"Don't give Ford Hall and the speakers there so much publicity as to worry over what they may or may not say," was the advice of the Rev. D. H. Dolby, pastor of the Baptist Bethel of Boston, and it proved to be the opinion of most of the Baptist ministers present.

Dr. Massee will occupy the pulpit at the Tremont Temple and is expected to preach his first sermon Easter.

Dr. Diffenbach made a scathing attack upon Dr. Massee and "all others" who believe in the corporal second coming of Christ, and urged "in the name of Christian tolerance, that the "decent people of Boston protest against Dr. Massee occupying the pulpit of Tremont Temple, which already possesses a pestiferous reputation."

This attack upon the fundamentalist doctrine brought an answer from a number of men present in Ford Hall last night and the attack upon Dr. Diffenbach was renewed today when the Baptist ministers met.

"I deplore the assertions made by Dr. Diffenbach," declared Rev. Arthur T. Kempton, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church, Cambridge, "It is a slander against Ford Hall and Tremont Temple that such an attack should be made against our denomination. I believe that some definite action should be taken as Ford Hall belongs to the Baptist denomination."

Such statements as those credited to Dr. Diffenbach are beneath the notice of Baptist ministers," declared Rev. Dr. W. S. Pease.

2 NEWTON BOYS DROWN IN ANDOVER

Andover, April 3.—Raymond Carley, sixteen years old, and his cousin, Stanley Carley, seventeen years old, West Newton boys, were drowned in Foster's Pond when a boat in which they were riding with Frederick A. Reichert, of West Newton, was capsized, throwing the boys into the water.

The boys were spending a few days at a camp owned by the father of Stanley Carley on the pond. The Reichart boy was the only one of the party who could swim to shore, and the news only became known today when he telephoned to his mother from the Phillips Academy at Reading, after walking all night in his wet clothing.

He told his mother that he had waited on the shore of the pond for hours calling out the names of his drowned companions in the hope that they had succeeded in keeping afloat.

Mrs. Carley is prostrated with grief. Fred Reichert is in the senior class of the Newton High School. The other two boys also attended Newton schools.

TRAIN BANDITS LEFT FREIGHT UNDISTURBED

Examination of Freight Cars Opened in N. Y. Central Hold-up Shows Goods Intact

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 3.—Bandits who held up a New York freight train at Chelsea yesterday did not steal any of the contents of the cars, officials of the railroad said today.

Six cars were opened by the hold-up men, officials said. One contained sugar, another waste paper, a third cotton, the fourth household goods and the others mixed merchandise. No attempt was made to disturb the freight. The bandits, apparently, expected to find silk shipments.

The robbers forced the train crew to detach the locomotive and drive it to New Hamburgh, three miles north, while the others broke into six cars of the train.

The crew of the train has been ordered to New York, where an investigation of the robbery will occur today.

Judge in Robes Causes Stir in Lower Court of Lynn

Judge Ralph W. Reeve of the District Court of Southern Essex, in Lynn, appeared in court today garbed in robes. It is believed to be the first time in the history of the State that a judge in the lower courts has appeared so dressed.

The donning of robes by Judge Reeve came about as the result of a meeting of lower court judges held some time ago, at which it was voted that the judges should wear robes whenever they saw fit.

A ripple of surprise swept over the courtroom when Judge Reeve walked in.

WALSH MOVES FOR GREATER AIR FLEET

Bay State Senator Urges Aeronautical Academy to Train Officers

By International News Service.

Washington, April 3.—The first step to build a "greater American air navy" as a result of the failure of the armament conference to limit aircraft was launched in the Senate today by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts.

Walsh introduced a resolution which would provide for the creation of a United States Academy of Aeronautics, similar to Annapolis and West Point. The resolution called on the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to report to Congress on the advisability of establishing the separate school for aviation officers.

Walsh warned against "leaving the nation's air forces defenseless while other nations were developing their air protection to the utmost."

MRS. SHUMAN'S SUPPORT SUIT IS LOST

Court Rules Husband Must Educate Daughters but Not Provide for Wife

Worcester, April 3.—Ida Day Shuman of Clinton today lost her fight for separate maintenance from her husband, Harold A. Shuman.

Probate Judge Forbes ruled that she was living apart from him for no justifiable cause. The decree provides that Shuman must educate their two daughters, Nathalie and Nancy, but makes no provision for Mrs. Shuman's support.

Neither does the decree contain any ruling, either one way or the other, in regard to the girls whom Mrs. Shuman charged had been overly intimate with her husband.

The decree provides that the two children are to enter the Whiting Hall School for Girls at Sudbury. Shuman is to pay their expenses while they are there.

At the conclusion of the Spring term, they may spend one week with Mrs. Shuman, after which they are to go to a Summer camp at Fairlee, Vt.

Easter and Christmas vacations may be spent with Mrs. Shuman, and while they are in school they may be visited at reasonable times by both parents.

During the vacations while the two are with their mother, Shuman must pay $50 a week towards their support. At all other times, however, he need pay his wife nothing.

Trial of the case was concluded several months ago, after a sensational legal battle, in which charges of too great intimacy with other women were made by Mrs. Shuman against her husband. None of these charges is sustained in the decree, however, which makes absolutely no mention of them.

Shuman countered his wife's charges with the assertion that she neglected home and that he was obliged, in consequence, to do the housework, mend the clothes of himself and his children, and the like.

The two daughters are now with Shuman, and will remain with him until April 10, when they enter the school.

LEWIS URGES NATIONALIZED COAL MINES

Must Come Sooner or Later, Miners' Chief Tells Congress

Washington, April 3 (By International News Service).—Sooner or later the government must step in, nationalize the coal mines and operate them for the benefit of the public, and it might as well be now as any time.

This was the message and the advice laid before Congress today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when he appeared before the House Labor Committee to present the miners' side of the present strike controversy.

The striking miners, Lewis said, are going to "stand pat" and present an unbroken front, and he advised the committee against attempts to force a settlement through adjustment boards or commissions.

"The mine workers," Lewis declared, "have been waiting with ever-growing impatience for many years, hoping to detect some signs that the operators were awakening to a realization of their duties. But so far nothing has been accomplished except talk and no relief has been extended to the mine workers or to the public.

"The mine workers say that there now seems to be no hope except through nationalization. No remedy has been offered by the operators and in default of any other remedy, the mine workers strongly urge that the government take over and operate the mines.

OPERATORS RESPONSIBLE.

"If the owners will not set their house in order, the public must step in and enforce order because, in a democracy such as this, no set of men, whether in the ranks of labor or of capital, can be allowed permanently to maintain public nuisances."

The mine chief's earnest advocacy of nationalization came after he had sketched conditions leading up to the strike and placed the blame for the present controversy wholly upon the shoulders of the operators.

No other course but to strike was left open to the miners, Lewis said, after the operators had broken their contract and refused to enter into a new wage conference.

"The operators do not deny they are contract breakers," Lewis said. "Mr. P. H. Penna, of Indiana, who for nearly two decades has been the chief spokesman for the coal operators in the central competitive field in a recent public interview, said:

"'I cannot deny that our refusal to meet is a violation of our agreement.'

"In the face of such a brazen and uncompromising attitude on the part of the coal operators, the mine workers had no alternative but to quit their work when the agreement expired.

"It is recognized by all thoughtful men that in the end an agreement must be effected through the accredited representative of the organized mine workers of the country, and it is particularly unfortunate that hundreds of thousands of men must be withdrawn from industry to the detriment of the social and economic well-being of our country before a joint conference can be held and an agreement negotiated.

WELCOME INVESTIGATION.

"The responsibility for this condition must rest clearly on the shoulders of the coal operators. Their attitude should rightfully bring down upon them the moral castigation of an outraged citizenship."

The mine workers generally would welcome any impartial and judicial investigation of general conditions in both bituminous and anthracite fields and especially, Lewis said, "the facts relating to investments and profits, operating practices, conservation of fuel resources—and industrial relations and conditions."

RAIN OF SHOTS ARE FIRED AT MEN IN WEST VIRGINIA COAL FIELDS

break in the strong non-union field of southwestern Pennsylvania came today when several hundred miners were persuaded not to go to work.

Every group of non-union men headed for the mines in the Kondike region, near New Salem, were met by squads of union men and told to remain home and "avoid trouble."

Nearly a thousand non-union men have gone on strike.

Suspension of work in the union coal mines of the country virtually was complete today, according to reports from union sources, and claims were made that the miners' cause had been strengthened by walkouts in some non-union districts.

President Lewis of the Mine Workers told the House Labor Committee that resumption of work depended entirely on operators, whose refusal to confer, he said, provoked the suspension.

Miners claimed complete tie-up in New River fields of West Virginia, non-union territory heretofore.

Scranton anthracite mining district reported suspension 100 per cent. effective, with 70,000 idle.

Geological Survey announced bituminous production of eleven and one-half million tons in week ended March 25, confirming the survey's forecast of 13,000,000 tons in coal miners' hands April 1.

Kansas operators made no effort to open mines, pending scenario meetings of miners and operators in Kansas City today to discuss the industrial court's order for a 25-day continuance of old working arrangements.

Meeting in Chicago of rail union groups today discussed relations of railroad workers to the miners' suspension of work.

Presidents of three anthracite districts in New York to resume wage negotiations with operators' sub-committee.

Efforts to operate the extensive non-union Connellsville, Pa., coke field by union organizers met with a degree of success today when about 300 miners on their way to work were induced to return to their homes at Footsdale, Lambert and Edenborn.

President Robert Gibbons of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, said that 200 non-union men did not return to work at Rices Landing, Pa., on the Monongahela River today, while at Latrobe, Pa., he said, 600 non-union men stayed away from their posts.

Announcement was made at Uniontown, Pa., the centre of the coke region, that 600 additional evens had been fired today by the H. C. Frick Coke Company and the Oliver Snyder Company.

Builders Give Jobs to Mine Strikers

Scranton, Pa., April 3.—Thousands of mine workers in the Scranton district, where approximately 70,000 men and boys are idle as a result of the mine suspension, were out today in search of employment in other industries. Building contractors in many sections of this city were hiring miners.

Why Spring Brings Out Freckles and Eruptions

The sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines at this season is attributed by specialists to the "actinic ray," which is unusually active during the spring months. Where the skin is so affected by this influence, if one will procure an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, the trouble can easily be overcome. When the wax is washed off next morning, minute flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or two with all its defects. No blotch could so effectively remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, pimples, or other unsightly blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking, youthful. No harm or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

PROPER WIRING WILL INCREASE RADIO CIRCUIT

Hook-Up Diagram Will Show Fans How to Put Parts in Right Place

By A. B. HOAG.

When you have set up the aerial of a radiophone receiving set you have completed the most difficult part of the construction.

Saturday I described what parts must be bought for an inexpensive receiving set and told how to set up the aerial. The hook-up diagram, showing how the parts go together, got set over in the question box by mistake in some of the early editions, so you may have missed it. It should be chosen to you to read the question box daily.

For any who may have missed it, however, it appears again today. Keep it before you while you do the wiring.

CONNECT TO POST.

Connect one end of the smaller wire you have purchased to the remaining post of the lighting switch. This wire you should carry to one binding post of the tuning coil, as shown in the diagram. It does not make any difference which post, unless the posts are marked.

The four posts of this coil are arranged in two pairs. From the post that makes a pair with the first post you connected, run a ground wire.

Instead of carrying this ground wire actually to the earth as you did the lightning ground, it will be sufficient if you attach it to some pipe that makes an electrical contact with the earth. A water pipe or steam pipe will do, and occasionally a gas pipe will serve.

Scrape the insulation from several inches of the wire, and scrape the pipe clean, so that when the wire is wound around the pipe it will make a close contact with the pipe. When you have the wire wound around the pipe, cover it tightly with electrician's tape, or the ordinary surgeon's adhesive plaster that comes in a roll.

Look at the diagram, and compare what you have done. When the lightning switch is thrown in the proper direction, you will observe that you have a complete path for the passage of the electricity from the aerial, through the lead-in, through the switch, through as many of the coils as are opened by the slide, through the pipe, and into the ground.

This is called the primary circuit. When wireless waves pass through the air and impinge on the aerial, a feeble current of electricity will pass in the path I have shown. The current will be stronger if the circuit is tuned to the transmitting station, or in other words to the wave length of the transmitting station.

WIRE ADDS LENGTH.

The larger the amount of wire through which the current must flow in the circuit, the longer the wave length to which it is tuned. So by adding turns of wire by sliding the proper arm of the tuner in the right direction, the wave length of the circuit will be increased.

Next run a wire from one of the remaining binding posts of the tuning coil to one of the posts of the condenser, the detector, and the phones, respectively. Run another wire from the remaining binding post of the tuning coil to the remaining posts of the condenser, the detector, and the phones, respectively. Make these wires as short as convenient.

This completes the secondary circuit. Compare it again with the diagram. When current flows through the primary circuit as I have explained it sets up another current in the secondary circuit by means of inductance.

TUNE TO PRIMRY.

This circuit must be tuned to the primary circuit, just as the primary circuit has to be tuned to the transmitting station. Since there is no large amount of wire in an aerial in the secondary circuit, it is necessary to use a condenser to make the wave length sufficiently long.

It would be possible to use more wire in the secondary circuit to make it tune to the primary, but in practice it is found that a condenser does the same thing more efficiently. Consider the condenser as merely a substitute in the secondary circuit for the extra wire in the aerial of the primary circuit.

Before using the set, it will be necessary to tune it. When you know that Medford is sending, clap the ear phones over your ears and set the variable condenser so that it is about half open—that is when the movable plates are about half exposed.

MOVE TWO SLIDERS.

Then move the two sliders of the tuning coil slowly back and forth. Vary the distance between them. At some point in the sliding you will hear a click in the phone. This is called the resonance click and indicates that at that point the set is tuned.

If you do not get a click, open or close the variable condenser and again work the sliders back and forth. When you finally do get a click, set the sliders where you get the maximum sound.

Then vary the condenser slightly back and forth. The condenser is for finer tuning than is possible on the coil.

You should now be able to hear the broadcasting. Occasionally the sound will be interfered with by static electricity in the atmosphere, and sometimes you will be able to hear clearer than others, for instance, you will hear clearer at night than in daytime.

If you have any difficulties I shall be glad to assist if you will explain them with all the details.

Jobless Man Seeks to Become a "Male Chambermaid"

Hard times have caused men to do unusual things for a livelihood. And one of the strangest tasks undertaken by any Bostonian in an effort to keep the wolf from the door is that adopted by Arthur Jackson, single, forty years old, of No. 57 Chandler street.

Jackson is going to become a "male chambermaid."

He has advertised in the newspapers for a position where he can do the housework, make the beds, sweep, dust, mop and the like, in return for room and board.

Jackson has been out of work for months. A slight injury to one hand prevents him from doing any heavy jobs and this has added to the difficulty of finding employment.

"It isn't exactly the kind of work I'd prefer to do," he said. "But I can do it as well as anyone, and it is a lot better than starving to death."

Question Box for Radio Fans

Q.—Enclosed is a sketch of two aerials. Would you use No. 1 or No. 2? Would I get good service surrounded by so many street wires?—B. W. M., Fairhaven, Mass.

A.—I should advise No. 2. The greater the angle between the aerial and nearby street wires, the less the interference.

Q.—Can you tell me the price of a radio set that can receive news from Boston? I would like to correspond with some amateur interested in wireless.—JOHN F. KENNEY, No. 361 Broadway, Lowell.

A.—A crystal detector with a good aerial costing about $35 should make it possible for you to hear from Medford. A vacuum tube set is of course better. Buy the Amateur Call Book from some radio store.

Q.—Does it matter if the lead-in wire from the aerial touches the house I have my set in?—E. B., Indian Orchard.

A.—While contact between lead-in and house might cause you no trouble, there is danger of two things. A high charge of atmospheric electricity from the aerial might set fire to your house, or in wet weather your antenna would be likely to be grounded before the wireless energy reached your set. Buy insulators and install them in accordance with the underwriters' specifications.

Q.—Would it be possible for me to receive music and lectures from Medford Hillside station with a two-slide tuning coil, fixed condenser, crystal detector and 2,000 ohms receivers?—C. L. C., Milton.

A.—You would have better success in tuning with a variable condenser. The rest is all right provided that your antenna (including lead-in), is long enough to make it possible for primary and secondary circuits to be in tune. See today's article and diagram for hook-up.

Q.—Have an aerial strung around the eaves of my house, taped it onto set at one end. Should this work? What size resistance should be used for resistance coupling in one stage of amplification?—R. S. J., Cambridge.

A.—Such an aerial should be satisfactory, but would not work as well as a straight one. Resistance should be 80,000 ohms

HEARST PAPER STARTS RADIO ON COAST

50,000 Listen in at Dedication of San Francisco Examiner Broadcaster

San Francisco, April 3.—Before an unseen audience of 50,000 persons, within a circle of thousands of miles, the San Francisco Examiner's radio broadcasting station was formally dedicated Sunday afternoon. Shattering the isolation bonds of space, and drawing the whole West as closely together as people in a theatre, the powerful new voice of modern magic, spoke to city and hamlet and distant inland.

Listeners as far away as the Canadian and Mexican borders, in fastnesses of the snow-locked Sierras, and on ships in lonely mid-ocean many days from land, fox-trotted like one family to the music in the air, and rewarded with manifold handclapping to the brief speeches of Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and Charles S. Stanton, publisher of the Examiner.

The Examiner's high-power station will be used daily for the broadcasting of news bulletins, weather and crop reports, music and other matters of interest.

Limitless in its possibilities, the new voice flashed over the hemisphere at 5:30 p. m., Pacific time.

The little gathering of editors and operators stood silent as the dedication was approached and strove to realize what the undertaking might mean to science, to journalism and to the world at large. The human family into a more perfect democracy.

After the mayor's speech there was a concert by the San Francisco orchestra and a program of operatic selections.

JAPANESE TO GET OUT OF SIBERIA

Had to Fight Soviet or Make Peace, Says Tokio Paper

Tokio, April 3 (By the Associated Press).—Immediate evacuation of Siberia was decided on at the last meeting of the Siberia Japanese Cabinet, according to the Tokio news papers today.

The Asahi Shimbun attributes the decision to activity of the Reds in maratime province, which it says places the Japanese forces in a position of having to fight the Soviet troops or make peace.

"In either case Japan would suffer," says the Asahi. "If they fight the situation would become further complicated. If they shake hands, the maintenance of troops there for the past five years loses its significance."

The Asahi says that the representatives at Dairen have been notified of Japan's intention to evacuate.

NEW EXAMINATION PLAN TRIED OUT AT HARVARD

Approximately 300 members of the graduating class will take these examinations in May.

Says It's Against the Law for a Man to Carry Booze, but Some Men Never Could

The government is trying to prevent some concern from running a booze ship outside the three-mile limit. The owners of the boat are just trying to prove to the prohibitionists how easy it will be for a man to get intoxicated on water.

The Government has threatened to stop hauling passports, and a lot of men are already taking swimming lessons.

The location of this booze ship will be known as the Three Smile Limit

The knitting companies are beginning to show bathing suits with hip pockets.

They're knitting them in all sizes —from half pints to four quarts.

It's now against the law to carry booze, but some men never could.

Liquor affects some men so that they can't stand up, but it's put a lot of bootleggers on their feet.

This booze ship is a bad thing—instead of a man coming rolling home, he'll come rowing home.

The wives will be down at the water front to see if their husbands come in with the next tide.

A woman won't know what time to meet her husband unless he tells her what wave he's coming in on.

Then he'll probably come home with the excuse that he missed the last breaker.

This liquor liner is hard to get to, but a guy who owns a lot of rowboats has turned them into jitney buses.

He has about five hundred of these Irish taxicabs.

But the boats are so small that a man gets soaked before he even gets on the ship.

The captain of this drinkers' dreadnought is a brave man, and once when the boat sank he stuck to the cash register till the last.

He started signalling an S. O. S. on the "No Sale" key.

His signal was picked up by a cash register company.

In case of a raid, the captain has orders to throw all the booze overboard, this would make wading at our beaches very popular.

A lot of men have been waiting for the ship to come in, but they don't have to wait any longer; they can now go out to meet it.

TWO HELD AFTER STILETTO FIGHT OVER WINE

Customers Arrested, Owner in Hospital, Home Is Raided by Police

A stiletto battle today which arose in a quarrel over payment for a sale of wine resulted in the arrest of two West Newton youths on charges of assault with intent to murder. Frank Castagnino is in the Newton Hospital in a serious condition from knife wounds.

The two young men are Antonio Canaro, twenty-three years old, of Oak avenue, and Elia Gerardo, twenty-five years old, of Border street, both of West Newton.

According to the police the young men went to Castagnino's home on Smith court, West Newton, to purchase some wine. Following the purchase, it is alleged, they refused to pay, and an argument arose.

At the height of the argument, it is said, the two purchasers drew their stilettos and assaulted Castagnino. Before he could defend himself he had been badly slashed. The two young men were arrested shortly afterward. They were arraigned in the Newton Court and held in bonds of $10,000 each for hearings next Saturday.

After the stabbing a squad of police raided Castagnino's home and seized twenty-five gallons of wine, together with paraphernalia for its manufacture.

We supply a delightful test. Watch your teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Learn how clean-teeth look and feel.

Compare the new way with the old and decide for yourself which is best.

It will be a revelation. Send the coupon below.

Those Shining Teeth

You see today—this is the usual reason

Note how many pretty teeth you see nowadays. Teeth that glisten as they never did before.

Millions now use this new way of teeth cleaning. Every day they combat the film, the coat that makes teeth dingy.

When you see and envy the effects, why not resolve to try them?

Film dims the teeth

That viscous coat you feel on teeth is film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The old ways of brushing did not effectively combat it. So the film-coats were persistent. And most tooth troubles have been traced to them.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

It breeds millions of germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles have been constantly increasing, because brushing has failed to end film.

Two effective ways

Dental research has long been seeking ways to daily fight that film. Two ways have now been found. Able authorities have proved them by many careful tests. Now leading dentists, nearly all the world over, are advising their adoption.

A new-day dentifrice has been evolved—called Pepsodent. It complies with modern requirements and avoids past mistakes. These two film-combating methods are embodied in it.

With Pepsodent, you can fight that film at home—fight it daily and effectively. And those white teeth you everywhere see show how many people do it.

Other requirements

Modern dental science makes other requirements. The average diet is rich in starch and sugar. Starch gums the teeth, gets between the teeth, and in fermenting it forms acids.

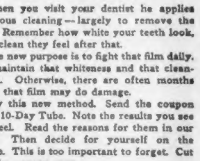
To digest that starch on teeth, Nature puts a starch digestant in the saliva. To neutralize the acids, she puts alkalis in the saliva. But both need frequent stimulation, which modern diet often fails to give.

So authorities now desire the tooth paste to apply that stimulation. Pepsodent multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. It multiplies the alkalinity. Thus it increases markedly these natural protective agents.

Thus Pepsodent brings five desired effects. None of them come from old methods. Together they are bringing a new dental era.

Do This Twice Daily

Remove the film.
Combat the hidden film.
Give the teeth high luster.
Digest the starch deposits by multiplying the starch digestant in the saliva.
Neutralize mouth acids by multiplying the alkalinity of the saliva.



Just film removal

When you visit your dentist he applies vigorous cleaning—largely to remove the film. Remember how white your teeth look, how clean they feel after that.

The new purpose is to fight that film daily. To maintain that whiteness and that cleanliness. Otherwise, there are often months when that film may do damage.

Try this new method. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note the results you see and feel. Read the reasons for them in our book. Then decide for yourself on the future. This is too important to forget. Cut out the coupon now,

DIVIDENDS ON MONEY TO KILL VERMIN

Expert Mildram Tells Edison Company Boosts Values of Investments

How the customers of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company are paying dividends on $29 spent by the company for exterminating bedbugs and for countless other small items which have nothing to do with the manufacture of electricity and which in the aggregate amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars was today described to the State Department of Public Utilities by Samuel H. Mildram.

Mildram is one of the expert accountants employed by the city of Boston to examine the Edison Company's private financial accounts in the case brought by the city and the Boston American to force down the prices charged the consumer for electricity.

Mildram explained that one of the bookkeeping accounts on the Edison books is the "plant account." The expenditures charged into that account are used as a basis for making rates. Once a sum is charged into the account, Mildram said, it stands forever on the Edison books as a sum on which the customers pay perpetual dividends to the Edison.

The item of $90 was spent by the Edison in 1914 to "exterminate bedbugs" in one of the dwelling houses owned by the company. It has remained on the books as a permanent investment which is used by the company as the basis of making up the rates charged to the customers.

Four hundred and seventy dollars for furnishing a livingroom in a dwelling house occupied by an employe, $94 for placing enamel signs in a lavatory, $50 for transferring a telephone stand from one room to another, $25 for painting signs on office doors and $20 for the purchase of a fire extinguisher installed in a farm at Wayland were among some of the items attacked by Mildram today.

"What was the farm for? For raising kilowatts?" inquired Former Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill, representing the city of Boston.

Attorney F. Manley Ives of the Edison explained that it was a "moving farm," used for advertising purposes.

Mildram today completed testimony regarding the Edison's plant accounts for 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917. In the first year he totaled items amounting to $306,377, which he said the Edison should have deducted from its accounts. The deductions made by Mildram amounted to $424,030.33 in 1915, $144,581.81 in 1918 and $132,587.72 in 1917.

In the twenty-year period which Mildram is investigating, he estimated he will have discovered about $2,000,000 of items that the Edison should not be allowed to continue to use in making up its rates to its customers.

PREMIER GIVES HIS PROGRAM AT GENOA

Asks Vote of Confidence; Says Russia Must Give Proof of Fitness

London, April 3 (by the Associated Press).—Premier Lloyd George appeared in the House of Commons today to ask expression of confidence in the policy of the government toward the Genoa economic conference. The House was crowded and he was greeted with cheers from the government benches.

He offered a resolution which he said gave the House an opportunity of approving or disapproving the objects of the Genoa conference and the make-up of the Genoa delegation. He declared that if the resolution were defeated it would be equivalent to a vote of no confidence in the government.

If the Treaty of Versailles were altered, he declared, it would only transfer the burden from Germany to France.

REPARATIONS PROBLEM.

Mr. Lloyd George said there were two considerations in dealing with the problem of reparations. The first was that if the payments were insisted upon beyond the power of the war-exhausted country a crisis would be precipitated which would not be confined to Germany. The second was that Germany's ultimate capacity to pay must be judged by her present capacity, when in common with the rest of Europe she was struggling to recover from the exhaustion of the war. Neither of these considerations could properly be judged at Genoa.

"One of the first things that will have to be attempted at Genoa is the restoration of exchange," he said. Exchange, continued the Premier, must be stabilized at a maintainable figure, which must therefore be constituted on a reliable basis of international commerce.

DEMAND ON RUSSIA.

Discussing the question of "peace in Russia and peace with Russia," Mr. Lloyd George said Russia could not get capital without securing confidence and internal as well as external peace. Germany could not fully pay her reparations until Russia was restored, he declared, and Russ a must recognize all the conditions imposed upon and expected of civilized committees as a test of her fitness for entering the community of nations.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON DOINGS OF BOSTON SOCIETY

Fashionable Folk Returning From Southern Resorts for Easter

By BETTY ALDEN.

SOCIETY folk Wintering in the Southland are rapidly migrating Northward, and the next few weeks will find practically the entire contingent of Winter travelers back here for the Easter Holidays.

During the past season, the many Bostonians seeking warmer climes were lured to this or that resort. Hot Springs, Camden, Aiken, White Sulphur Springs, Miami, Bermuda and Palm Beach—all vied with one another to capture the somewhat capricious fancy of fashionable folk from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington. Palm Beach probably secured the largest quota, and among the Bostonians who passed the colder months there were the Reginald Boardmans, the Charles Minot Amorys, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ahl, Mrs. Charles P. Choate, the John S. Curtises, Mrs. Charles L. Harding, Dr. and Mrs. Hobart Endicott Warren, Mrs. Alfred Codman, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barnard, Mrs. Hobart Ames and the George Wendell Phillips, as well as several others claiming New York or Washington as their Winter residence, but who spend their Summers along the North Shore.

Among of sojourners at Palm Beach, I understand that Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ahl will conclude their all-season's stay there next Monday, when they will leave for Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Ahl, who found fishing one of the chief diversions at the Florida resort, have an all-year-round home on the North Shore at Hamilton known as "Meadowside."

Also from Palm Beach comes the news that Mrs. Charles A. Munn has left that resort and is now at her home in Washington for a brief stay. Very shortly Mrs. Munn, who is one of the most prominent figures of the North Shore colony, will open her estate at Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, other members of the cottage colony at Palm Beach, are also leaving there soon to open their Manchester Summer home.

Trumpets will be heard all over the city today and tomorrow to announce the fact that the "Bazaar of the Season" will be in progress at the Army and Navy Club, No. 16 Park square, tomorrow and Wednesday. The proceeds of the affair, in which a corps of prominent matrons are interesting themselves, will go toward the running expenses of the club.

It is due to the fact that there is a strong army and navy interest in the bazaar that the three trumpeters have been loaned for the occasion by the three branches of the service: one from the army, one from the navy, and the third from the marine corps. For the young men who will blazen forth the announcement of the bazaar, are "honest-to-goodness," bona fide, official trumpeters of the service.

Mrs. William A. Gaston, chairman of the committee in charge, will be assisted by several matrons of prominence in army and navy circles. Mrs. Henry A. Wylie, wife of Admiral Wylie, the commandant of the Charlestown navy yard, will pour tea, while Mrs. Henry Grant Learnard, wife of Colonel Learnard, U. S. A., will be in charge of the luncheon to be served from 12 to 2. Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards is honorary chairman of the army and navy service committee.

The younger element was much in evidence among the audience which attended the Infants' Hospital cabaret at the Boston Opera House, though there was, of course, a strong following of distinguished paters and maters of truly first family fibre to see Adelaide Whitman's "Why Not."

The debutantes were there, almost en masse. Those who had not been enlisted as ushers or waitresses for the occasion helped to make up the smart and colorful audience. In the latter group were Eleanor Musgrave, wearing a frock of light blue taffeta and white lace, trimmed with dainty clusters of rosebuds; Alice Cuddeback in a gown of light blue and silver with rosebuds, and wearing a headband of blue and white; Rosamond Reed wore cerise and silver, and dainty Mary Hall was in cerise velvet with gray fur.

Others in the audience were Mrs. Thomas G. Stevenson (Frances Le Moyne), wearing bright red; Mrs. John Perrin, whose black gown was largely covered by a Spanish shawl; Anita Sturgis in old blue velvet and Jeweyln Parker in silver cloth shot with blue.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MEMBERS of the Newport Summer colony interested in the Easton's Beach Corporation, which has been seeking a lease of the beach, have been disappointed, for the Board of Aldermen has awarded a new lease to the Newport Beach Association, which has been operating the beach for the last two years. Summer residents had hoped to prevent this, as the Newport Beach Association plans to erect a second "Coney Island" there.

Members of the Harvard class of 19 will be interested to learn of the engagement of one of their classmates, John Bradley Cummings, to Miss Katherine Hurd, both of New York. Mr. Cummings, who served overseas during the war with the Twenty-sixth Division, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester O. Swain of Madison avenue. His fiancee, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hurd, was introduced to society last year. The wedding is to take place in October.

Mrs. James Cummings Barr, formerly of Boston, recently gave a dinner at her New York home on East Sixty-eighth street for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Landon Humphreys, and Mr. and Mrs. James McAlpin Pyle. The guests were young people.

Mrs. Herbert Asquith, with her son-in-law and daughter, Prince and Princess Bibesco, were the guests of Mr. Paul D. Cravath at dinner at Sherry's on Friday evening.

The Junior League will open its large new rooms at No. 240 Boylston street tomorrow with a luncheon at 1 o'clock, to be followed by a lecture by Mrs. Jackson Fleming at 2:30.

Mrs. Robert Farley Clark of Chestnut street is to speak on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, No. 264 Boylston street, on "A Tourist's Impressions of Peru and the Peruvians." A large number of stereopticon slides will be shown which Mrs. Clark collected during her travels in South America. Several prominent society women are acting as patronesses for the lecture.

PASTOR WANTS FLOCK BLASTED OUT OF RUT

Minister Quits Because His Movies Were Criticised by Ladies' Aid

Hubbardston, April 3.—When the Rev. Alfred L. O'Brien, pastor of the Methodist church, served hot cocoa to rural school children in the vestry and had movies in the church the Ladies Aid Society was surprised.

The preacher resigned.

He left today following his farewell sermon, in which he declared "My successor may be able to dynamite You out of the rut you are in."

He charged his movies had taken loafers off street corners and his hot cocoa helped kiddies to relish cold lunches.

"Whan that Aprille—"

April is here with its laughter and quick following tears. It is most appropriate that the diamond should be the birthstone for this month of sunny skies and sudden showers. The fire of the raindrop glistening in the sun is caught in the diamond. The gem is as clear and pure as the occasional pool that forms in the dells and dales.

Fortunate is the person born in April, for the diamond is the royal jewel. It has ruled through the ages all over the world. It has no rival for beauty or for popularity. When it is one's birthstone there is an added delight in wearing it.

We have been diamond merchants for one hundred and twenty-two years. We have studied diamonds long and earnestly; and we feel confident that we offer our customers the best stones and settings available for the amount to be invested.

2 INTOXICATED DRIVERS GIVEN JAIL TERMS

Medford Man Weeps as He Admits Guilt; Taunton Youth Begins Sentence

Two automobilists in different parts of the State today received jail terms for driving autos while under the influence of liquor. They are the first to feel the effects of the determination of the courts to impose prison terms for this offence.

The first was Walter P. Shumway, twenty-eight years old, wealthy son of A. M. Shumway, president of the Atlas Buckram Company of Taunton, sentenced to thirty days in the New Bedford House of Correction. Shumway was arrested a week ago, sentenced to forty days and fined $100. He appealed. Today he withdrew that appeal and the sentence was reduced ten days.

The other case was that of William Collins, thirty-seven years old, of No. 84 Monument street, West Medford. He was arrested after a chase by officers of the State Motor Constabulary, that ended when Collins' machine crashed into a touring car owned by Kenneth L. McLellan, of No. 1048 Boylston street, Boston.

Collins, in court, pleaded guilty but begged for mercy on the ground he had never been under arrest before. He broke down and wept when sentenced to a jail term by Judge Connolly in the Waltham Court.

"Speeding by drunken autoists must stop," declared Judge Connolly. "Fines do no good. Jail sentences are the only cure."

Lieutenant Commander High C. Frazier, attached to the Newport, R. I., naval station, was fined $100 for driving while under the influence of liquor, when arraigned in the District Court of Taunton. He paid.

JURIST SCORES PROCEDURE OF DRY AGENTS

Judge Anderson Declines to Take Immediate Action in Keefe Case

"What remedy the American people have against the lawlessness of officials having police functions is a question of importance. I am prepared to hear arguments, and when I make rulings I intend that those rulings shall be grounded as nearly as may be possible on the authorities that are binding on me. My whole tendency is one of revolt against these alleged illegal proceedings."

So declared Judge George W. Anderson, in the Federal Court today, in declining to take immediate action in the matter of refusing an injunction to Cornelius and Dennis J. Keefe, restraining field prohibition agents from seizing a large stock of "Robustine," a patented medicine, owned by the Keefes.

The matter came up on a motion of Assistant United States District Attorney Elihu D. Stone asking the court to dismiss the petition of the Keefes for issuance of the injunction.

The Keefes seek to prevent use of the medical stock as evidence against them in pending cases before the court.

Assistant District Attorney Stone declared the petition for the injunction was a move to balk the efforts of prohibition agents and in defiance of the statutes.

Attorneys Daniel A. Shea and Leo A. Rogers, representing the Keefes, stated the search made of their client's plant by dry forces was illegal.

"If the court cannot deal with this situation," added Attorney Rogers, "the people are certainly badly off. We have evidence to prove the whole move was illegal."

The court then expressed its opinion of "lawless officers" and concluded:

"This case is one of some importance and cannot be disposed of in slapdash fashion. I shall continue it one week."

LAUD BOSTON AMERICAN IN SCOTT NEARING CASE

Resolutions commending the Boston American, the Baltimore Sun, the Nation, the Intercollegiate Liberal League and others for "invaluable aid in bringing the American public to the realization that intellectual liberty is menaced," in connection with the action of President Wallace Atwood of Clark University in stopping the lecture of Professor Scott Nearing were passed by the Free Lance Club of George Washington University. President Atwood's action was termed "un-American and ruthlessly Prussianistic."

HIT BY AUTO, FINED FOR "JAY WALKING"

James P. Nagle of Downing street, Roxbury, was fined $5 by Judge Sullivan today for "jay walking" at Washington and Winter streets. According to Nagle's story, corroborated by that of Stanley B. Cobb, Nagle believed the traffic officer had given the signal to go ahead. Nagle started and when half-way across the street he was run over by an auto, the wheel of which passed over his right foot.

ROLAND designs something particularly sporting in sports capes—of violet serge mouffionne—and gives it a little tailored vest to match, buttoned, pocketed, and having its string girdle tied demurely in a bow at the side front. The cape is circular, with a tucked strip of self-fabric making its collar and continuing into an edging at the front. The separate white skirt, which has lately been in the discard, is again coming to the fore, worn with the sports cape and caped sleeveless blazer.

THE tweed that is popular beyond all expression is made by Maison Linker into a smartly tailored costume, belted and pocketed and strapped in a severity that is peculiarly apt. It is in its familiar mixed gray tone, with collar of black moire and buttons of gray bone. The pleated skirt echoes the idea of all-round outdoor wear suggested by the coat.

On shipments of 750 tons or more the new rate will be 45 cents per 100 pounds, as against the previous rate of 55 cents. Boston flour dealers said the cut was not important, although the flour comes in competition with Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio and Michigan flours, which carry an all rail freight rate of about 75 cents.

OFFER CHANCE TO DRAMATIC AUTHORS

Provincetown Players Invite Them to Send in Manuscript of New Plays

The Provincetown Players are in the field for new plays by American playwrights, it is announced from the Selwyn Theatre, where The Players are holding forth in "The Emperor Jones."

James Light, director of The Players, is in the city, and will receive manuscript which he will submit to a careful and conscientious reader.

The Players credit themselves with having discovered Eugene O'Neill through their experimental theatre at No. 133 Macdougal street, New York. The Playwrights' Theatre is its official title, and from its inception the purpose of its promoters has been to promote American plays and playwrights, leaving it to other theatres, large and small, to worry over neglected geniuses from foreign fields.

PRODUCE AMERICAN PLAYS.

In their seven seasons, The Provincetown Players have produced exclusively American plays, with one exception. It is a record of which they are proud. It is their established policy, their ideal, their constitution, "to establish a stage where American playwrights of sincere poetic, literary and dramatic purpose can see their plays in action, and superintend their production without submitting to the commercial manager's interpretation of public taste . . . an opportunity for actors, producers, scenic and costume designers to experiment with a stage of extremely simple resources."

The Players began as an experimental theatre, and they are pleased to feel they have remained just that. They have so far progressed that they are now unhampered by limited finances enabling any sort of dramatic effort to receive a more complete production.

PLANNING NEW PLAYS.

"The Emperor Jones," "The Spring," "The Verge" and "The Hairy Ape" all came to life on the Macdougal street theatre stage, and outgrowing those small quarters were removed to uptown theatres.

The Players are constantly reading and planning for new plays. Since the beginning of their present four several meritorious manuscripts have been submitted. One in particular by a young St. Louisan is sure of a production this season or next. So send in your plays to Mr. Light, the Provincetown Players, Selwyn Theatre.

The Russian delegates, however, are confident that they can successfully defend their interests.

"Forgot His Own Sufferings in Russia's Plight"

Stockholm, Sweden, April 3.—During the second visit to Peter Kropotkin we had an hour together. In that time Peter spoke in detail of the Russian Revolution, the part played by the Bolsheviki, the lesson to the Anarchists in particular and the world in general.

He considered the Russian Revolution in scope and possibilities greater than the French Revolution. While it is true that the people were not developed in the Western sense, yet they are more responsive to new arrangements of life.

The spirit of the masses during the February and October Revolutions demonstrated that they understood the great changes waiting their concerted efforts, and they were willing to do their share.

The people knew that something tremendous was before them, which they themselves must face, organize and direct. That spirit, though now fettered by hunger, privation and persecution, is yet very much alive. The dogged resistance offered by the people of Russia to the Bolshevik yoke is the best proof of that. The Bolsheviki in their march to power were far from being the advance guard of the Revolution, as they claim. On the contrary, they were the dam which had thrown back the rising tide of the people's energies.

CRUSHING REVOLUTION.

In their fixed idea that only a dictatorship can direct and protect the Revolution, they went about strengthening their formidable state which is now crushing the Revolution. As Marxians they never have, nor will they ever, realize that the only protection of the Revolution lies in the ability of the people to organize their own economic life.

Kropotkin also spoke of the part the anarchists played in the revolution, of the death of some, the heroic struggle of many, the irresponsibility of the few. Above all, he emphasized the need for all the anarchists to be better equipped for reconstructive work during the revolution. I distinctly remember these words:

"We anarchists have talked much about the social revolution. But how many had ever taken pains to prepare for the actual work during and after the revolution? The Russian revolution has demonstrated the imperativeness of such preparation for practical reconstructive work."

In a letter to one of his closest friends, Kropotkin wrote that he had come to see in syndicalism the economic basis of anarchism. In other words, the medium for the economic organization and expression of the energies of the people during the revolutionary period.

ARRIVED AFTER DEATH.

It was a memorable day. Alas, the last I was ever to spend with our Grand Old Man. When I was called to take care of him during his last illness I reached Dmitroff an hour after his death. The usual bureaucratic confusion, inefficiency and delay robbed me of the opportunity to render Kropotkin some slight service in return for all that he had given me.

Two things had struck me in Kropotkin on both visits: The lack of bitterness toward the Bolsheviki, and the fact that he never once alluded to his own hardships and privations. It was only after his death that I learned a few details of his life under the Bolshevik regime.

In the early part of 1918, Kropotkin had grouped around him some of the ablest specialists in various branches of political economy. The purpose was to study the economic resources of Russia, and to compile these resources in monographs, to make them of practical help in the reconstruction of Russia.

MATERIAL CONFISCATED.

Kropotkin was the editor-in-chief of that undertaking. One volume was prepared, but never published. The Federalist League, as this scientific group was known, was broken up by the government and all the material confiscated.

On two occasions the Kropotkin apartments were requisitioned, and the family forced to find other quarters. It was after all these experiences that the Kropotkins moved to Dmitroff, where he became an involuntary exile. Even in the Summer it was difficult to visit him.

Special permission had to be procured to travel, and that involved much effort and time. In the Winter it was almost altogether impossible. Thus he, who had in the past gathered at his home the best in thought and ideas from every land, was now forced to the life of a recluse.

ONLY PEASANT VISITORS.

His only visitors were unfortunate peasants, workers of his village, and some of the intelligentzia who would come to him with their daily misfortunes.

I remember that the evening of our visit Kropotkin had received a letter from an old friend in Moscow, a scientist. The man was living with his wife and two children in one room. Only a small lamp was lighting up the family table at which the children had to prepare their lessons, the wife copy some manuscripts, while he used one corner to do his scientific research. He was employed at a place twelve versts from home and had to walk that daily.

Kropotkin, who had always kept in touch with the world through numerous publications in every tongue, was now cut off entirely from that source of life. He was not even able to learn what was happening in Moscow or Petrograd. His only channels of news were the two government papers, the Pravda and the Isvestia. He was much handicapped in his work on ethics while he lived in Dmitroff. He could not obtain the necessary books of research.

In short, Kropotkin was mentally starved, which was, no doubt, greater torture to him than physical malnutrition. He received a much better payok, or ration, than most people. But even that was by far not sufficient to keep up his vitality.

Fortunately he received from time to time assistance—in the form of provisions—from various sources. Thus his comrades from abroad, as well as those from the Ukraine, often sent him foodstuffs. He also received similar gifts from Makhno, then heralded by the Bolsheviki as the terror of the counter-revolutionary forces in Southern Russia.

But especially was felt the lack of light and fuel. When I visited the Kropotkins in 1920, they were considering themselves fortunate to have light in more than one room. During part of 1918 and all of 1919, Kropotkin wrote his ethics by the flicker of a tiny oil lamp that nearly blinded him.

SLOWLY AND PAINFULLY.

During the short hours of the day he would transcribe his notes on a typewriter, slowly and painfully pounding out every letter. However, it was not his own discomfort which upset Kropotkin's strength. It was the hardships of Russia, the suffering about him, the suppression of every thought, the persecution and imprisonment for opinion's sake, the endless rastrels of people, which made his last years the deepest tragedy.

If only he could have done something to help, to lessen the sufferings, to bring the dictators of Russia to their senses. But he could not. He could not, like some of the old revolutionary guard, make common cause with the enemies of the revolution.

One of the striking characteristics of Peter Kropotkin was his reticence in everything concerning himself. In my stay of thirty-six hours at his Dmitroff home, while his body lay in death, I learned more of his personal life than during all the years I had known him. But few even of his immediate circle knew that Peter Alexeievitch was an artist and a musician of considerable talent. Among his effects I discovered a whole collection of his drawings of great merit.—From the article by Emma Goldman.

"Privations of Others Deepened Tragedy of His Last Days"

SOLACE IN MUSIC.

He loved music passionately and was himself a musician of no mean ability. He spent much of his leisure hours at the piano. No doubt he was able to find some forgetfulness and peace in the masters whose works he rendered with deep understanding.

CONRY OFFERS PLAN TO RAISE BONUS MONEY

Foreign Countries Would Pay Their Debts to U. S. Under Same Proposal

A suggestion whereby the soldiers' bonus would be earned and paid by the foreign countries which now owe America eleven billion dollars was made by Joseph A. Conry, speaking before Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, in South Boston. He said:

"One of the subjects demanding the attention of our statesmen is the matter of adjusted compensation for our young men who served in the army—soldiers' bonus—so-called. As to the merits of the idea there is generally throughout the country a sympathetic interest.

"The first serious question in connection with the solution of the problem is the matter and manner of raising the necessary money by taxation. The President has recommended a sales tax, that is on every article sold above a certain value, a tax will be paid by the purchaser and collected by the storekeeper. This plan is not acceptable to the President's own majority in Congress.

"I respectfully offer a suggestion whereby the soldiers' bonus will be earned and paid by the foreign countries which now owe America eleven billion dollars. They cannot pay this money at the present time—they are in no economic condition to do so. America has more gold piled up in bank vaults than is good for the trading health of the other nations of the world.

"Take the case of Austria, for example. Congress, the other day, passed a bill extending for twenty-five years the time in which Austria should pay $25,000,000 she owes to the United States. And Austria, mark you, was one of the states whose soldiers were engaged in fighting our armies.

"Austria is bankrupt, but Austria has great natural resources which only need the employment of capital to produce revenue enough to pay her obligations.

"Let Austria say to American capital, 'We will welcome you to our land, we will grant you concessions of mining and timber lands in value far in excess of $25,000,000. If you will put your money into our industrial development we will guarantee the safety of your investment and we will arrange with you to pay the debts of Austria to the United States out of the joint productive earning capacity of Austrian resources and American capital. We thus add to the wealth of the world and by international co-operation we pay off the debts due the United States.'

"This result might also serve to restrain the violent eloquence of those men who are continually shrieking against the wickedness of capitalists and bondholders anxious to exploit a country for selfish reasons.

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

They divide all women into two classes

Do you know in which class you belong?

NERVE specialists say that there are two main classes of people:

(1) Those who have a great store of reserve energy on which to draw; (2) those who quickly exhaust their nervous energy and whose bodies are slow in repairing the loss.

The first type of woman may suffer only local attacks of fatigue — brain, eyes, etc.

The second type, however, faces the risk of general disorders. If the fatigue poisons (and we know now that fatigue is a real poison) accumulate in the body without relief, there comes a final breakdown.

More and more, women are coming to recognize fatigue as an enemy from which they must protect themselves.

One great cause of fatigue

Modern life is a drain on every woman's strength. You cannot change the pace at which you live, but you can protect yourself from useless wastes of energy.

One of the worst of these wastes is the strain of standing and walking on hard floors and pavements. The average woman takes 8000 steps a day—receives 8000 separate shocks to the delicate nervous system.

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels relieve this strain. Trim, elastic, springy, they are made for every type of shoe.

Make sure you get real protection

Ordinary rubber heels are so soft and crumbly that they quickly wear down, or so hard and lifeless that you might as well wear leather. O'Sullivan's Heels combine the proper toughness with the greatest springiness.

In spite of the fact that O'Sullivan's cost your repairman more than other heels, the price to you is generally the same. The repairman could make a bigger immediate profit on any one of a half dozen substitutes. But when he puts on O'Sullivan's, he knows you'll come back to him again.

Ask for O'Sullivan's—see that they are attached. The O'Sullivan Heel Company.

HUTCHISON DISCUSSES FADS AND FANCIES OF ROYAL GAME

By JOCK HUTCHISON

Golfers like to ask questions. This was brought home to me very much on my recent trip to the Pacific Coast. It was the first time Jim Barnes and myself had appeared in the roll of entertainers, and it was with great pleasure that we answered every question that our golfing audience could think to ask.

I made a note of some of the things that were really amusing and others that were quite sensible. One of the first things that was thrust at me was: "Why do you wear a high collar when playing golf?"

I am not going to recommend that every golfer do this apparently foolish thing, but I know some players who would help their game a lot if they tried it.

I hit upon this quite by accident. One day I had to go out for a game without having time to change my clothes. I had on a very high collar and thought I was going to choke when I made my first swing.

I soon saw that if I held my head still there would be no inconvenience in the least and I made a special effort to keep my head from turning except very slightly in the back swing. It worked wonders and the game I played that day was a revelation. Every shot came off about as I had planned it.

* * *

It soon became a fad with me. Now it is a habit and I play my best golf this way. I remember years ago the style of dress for the pro was a bandana handkerchief tied around the neck. The shirt was often open with the handkerchief tied loosely. I doubt whether it brought out the best golf in one. Perhaps it made no difference to the stars and again it might have.

One enthusiast asked me about my grip. He noticed that I had exaggerated the Vardon grip somewhat and had overlapped with two fingers instead of one. This is easily explained. I have rather large hands and feel that I can equalize the strength of both hands better this way.

The grip is largely a matter of comfort too. Every golfer should make his hands act together as one unit instead of giving them a chance to fight each other.

* * *

"Why do you turn your head to one side when making the back swing?" asks another.

This, too, can be called a habit, but there was a reason for it in the beginning. I can see the ball better this way and there is less danger of forgetting to pivot.

The body turns from the hips to the head. It is only natural that the head should also turn a wee bit to extend the pivot so far as possible.

This does not interfere in the least with the perfect timing of the shot.

When my hands come around and the club head comes in contact with the ball, my left heel touches the ground again and my head is in exactly the same position it was in when I made the address.

"Why does Jim Barnes put his right foot out so far in making a put?" asked another.

Jim has the correct putting stance. In as much as he has nearly all of his weight on the left foot swinging also matters.

Another golfer couldn't understand why Jim hit the ball close to the heel of the club when putting. This is more or less a habit with him, but there is a reason for it. He can keep the ball on a line better and there is less chance of making a weak put by having the club turn a little. Some fine players put off the toe of the club. It is most all in the way one gets a start.

"Why do you claim that the best shot is the fade away from left to right? Why is it a better ball than the slight hook which is known to be a long roller?"

The fadeaway is used by the best pros now because it is controlled better. There is a difference between the slice and the fadeaway and a very great difference. The slice is even more treacherous a ball to handle than the hook because in most cases the slice is accidental. There is just enough of the slice on the fadeaway to throw it in toward the right.

I observed Vardon using this shot to the green when he was here in 1913. It was new to most of us then and many of the pros at that time asked questions about it. It was the only shot that could actually be made to stop dead bagsaw of the cut put on the ball.

"Why do golfers prefer knickerbockers to long trousers?"

It is possible to putt better in knickers because there is less chance of the wind blowing the trousers.

Women golfers would find knickers far preferable to skirts. Those who have played in them never feel the same again the old way. It is a fashion that is sensible from a golfing standpoint just the same as riding breeches are sensible and popular for horse back riding.

MORE THAN 200 IN OPEN AT PINEHURST

Fownes of Oakmont One of the Favorites in Big Amateur Golf Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., April 2.—More than 200 amateurs started today in the North and South open golf championship. There is a 36-hole qualifying round with the lowest sixteen gross scorers to go into the championship match play.

A number of the players have qualified in the national championship and one former amateur champion, W. C. Fownes of Oakmont, champion of the 1921 American International team, is included in the field. He is one of the favorites.

Among the other strong players are Joe Schlichman of Detroit, W. C. Newton, the Country Club, Brookline; John A. Gammons of Providence, H. Kawashi, amateur champion of Japan; B. F. Merriman of Waterbury, North and South champion; Harold Weber, Joe Wells and Robert H. Stranahan of Ohio, and A. L. Walker, Jr., winner of the mid-Winter and St. Valentine's tournament here.

The local delegation, headed by Donald Parron, John D. Chapman, Howard Phillips, Ned Neill, Arthur Yates, Irving R. Robeson, E. S. Scofield and Fred Kennedy will be out in force.

Henry Topping and Hamilton Kerr of Greenwich, Eddie Lowery, Fred H. Elliott, Chester Rich and Ralph Horblower of Boston, and Grantland Rice and John Anderson of New York are also here.

Nearly one thousand turned out to watch Joe Kirkwood, from far off Australia, make golf balls do his bidding.

The Australian is back with a lot of new trick shots which he will show to America upon his return from Europe. Perhaps the best is hitting a ball which swings from the end of a string. Joe uses his driver as he would a tennis racquet, and catching the ball clean, hits the longest volley shot on record.

He has a few shots in which he takes full swing at the ball, but hits on the toe with such force that it runs off the toe a few feet. He also has cultivated a perfect top shot. His tricks are interesting, but it was his serious work with all clubs that a critical Pinehurst crowd appreciated most. His title is a well earned and firmer.

His push shots with woods and irons are perfect and his hooks and slices come off with precision, being quick or slow, as called for and of a long flight, according to the way he calls the shot.

Following the exhibition Kirkwood and Walter Hagen, a pair that will likely be seen much together this Summer, defeated Pat O'Hara, the new North and South champion, and Cyril Walker of Englewood, 4 and 3, the gallery which had gathered to watch Kirkwood hit his shots, following the match.

Kirkwood had an individual round of 35-34-69 and a number of his approach putts rimmed the cup. Hagen was 35-36-71, Walker 37-39-76 and O'Hara 38-40-78. The best ball of the Kirkwood-Hagen team was 33-34-67, and of Walker and O'Hara 36-37-73.

MULCIBER AND BE FRANK MAY RACE AT TIA JUANA

San Diego, Cal., April 3.—There is some talk of bringing Mulciber and Be Frank together at equal weights at Tia Juana before the black son of Vulcan is shipped East.

Be Frank was badly beaten in the Coffroth Handicap, for which he was installed favorite, but it may be he was made too much use of in the early running, and that with a better ride he would have acquitted himself in a manner more credit to himself.

There is no taking any credit away from Mulciber, however. As the race was run he was the best away the better horse. It was only fitting that he should be perfectly ridden by Tia Juana's pigskin sensation, Jack Huntamer.

FIVE BOUTS AT CARLYLE CLUB TONIGHT; SHADE SHAPES UP WELL

By JACK CONWAY.

Boston's busiest boxing week will get underway this evening when the Carlyle A. C. stages five eight-round bouts at the Grand Opera House. At the Boston Arena tomorrow night Dave Shade will have Nate Siegal as an opponent, while eight of our best bantamweights will clash at the Fanueil A. C.'s meeting at Mechanics Building Friday evening. Then to add to the enthusiasm of the dear old public, the St. Joseph's T. A. Society will stage an amateur show at Commercial Hall Friday night.

This program should satisfy even the most exacting of the fans. By Saturday the fistic element in our community should be prepared to linger around the family fireside.

Matchmaker Bill Brophy has a strong card for the Carlyle Club tonight. The feature eight-rounder number will bring together Kid O. Charley Miller of the South End and Irish Paddy Flynn of Everett. Both of these men are heavy hitters and should furnish plenty of action.

* * *

The other bouts should also produce plenty of action. Red Chapman will clash with Mike Castle of Lawrence, Steve Gustin of South Boston will have Joey Miller of California as an opponent, and Billy Duffy of Everett will try to put the skids under Tommy French of Brockton, while Joe Fontaine of Clinton will collide with Phil Christie of the South End.

Dave Shade, one of the world's greatest welterweights, will make his Boston debut when he battles Nate Siegal of Revere in a ten-round bout under the direction of the Arena A. C. at the Boston Arena tomorrow night.

This is the nearest thing to a championship bout that could be arranged. Shade has fought Jack Britton twice. Both contests ended with honors even. The lack of experience was the only thing that prevented Shade from wresting the title from Britton when they collided in New York a few months ago. Shade carried the fight to the champion in every round and on several occasions had the title holder in mighty poor condition.

Shade is only nineteen years of age and is considered by many experts as the coming champion of the boxing division. Since battling Britton, the youthful Californian has kept busy in the ring. Last week at Milwaukee he handed the dope a severe jolt when he knocked out Tucky Mitchell in four rounds.

Shade says he will also stop Siegal, he has been informed that Nate is a free-hitting fighter who will risk an exchange of blows with a rival. Shade seems to think that this will give him an opportunity to slip over one of his kayo wallops.

Siegal realizes the importance of the match, and will be in the best condition of his career when he enters the ring tomorrow night. He has been at Hammond Hill, Rhode Island, since his winning battle with Eddie Shevlin, and says he will set a terrific pace for Shade. Nate is delighted at the fact he will be opposed by a man who will stand up and swap blows with him.

* * *

The Arena A. C. expects a capacity crowd. There has been a big advance sale, and it is expected that the demand for reservations today and tomorrow at the club's office at room B, No. 39 Court street, will mean a new attendance record for the Arena.

The Fanueil A. C., as usual, believes in doing things in big way. Messrs. Mahoney and McGann have a show for Friday night at Mechanics Building which is one of the best all-star programs ever offered the fans in this city.

Young Montreal of Providence and Jabez White of Albany will clash in the feature ten-round number. Montreal has always been a favorite here and won over Danny Edwards at the Arena. White showed here several years ago and Manager Mahoney held this worthy even for twelve rounds.

Danny Edwards, the little California sensation, will be pitted against Roy Moore of St. Paul. Moore is a rugged, tough fellow and is sure to carry Edwards along at a lively clip.

Abe Attoll Goldstein, who has battled most of the stars in the bantamweight division, will collide with Johnny Shephard of Woburn, while Paddy Owens of Cambridge will test the ability of Dandy Dillon of Indianapolis.

The teams are evenly matched and should furnish all kinds of action. Reservations may be secured at the Fanueil Club's office at No. 39 Court street.

* * *

Mickey Travers, who claims the New England featherweight title, will have Dick Loudman of Buffalo as an opponent in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Casino A. C. of Lynn tonight. Travers has been boxing better than any of our brave featherweights, and is confident he will be able to dispose of Loudman. The later is a stiff puncher and aggressive, and is sure to carry Vic Richardson's protege along at a lively clip.

ATLANTA PLANS BIG RUNNING RACE MEET

$10,000 Futurity for 2-Year-Olds Feature Race Carded Between Oct. 16 and 24

Atlanta is destined to take its place on "the big time" circuit with honest-to-goodness race horses, regular jockeys and high-class horse owners participating for purses ranging all the way from $1,000 to $10,000. The first meeting is scheduled to be held from October 16 to 24.

The meet is made likely by the withdrawal of the Southeastern Fair from the Grand Circuit of trotting tracks. Secretary Striplin, of the Atlanta organization, announces that the Lakeside track—Lakeside Park—would hereafter cater only to the running horse.

In heralding his withdrawal from the Grand Circuit and the intention of converting Lakeside Park into a running track, Secretary Striplin made a ten strike with the sport-loving citizens of Atlanta because several prominent men of that city have already offered to donate cups and trophies for special races for thoroughbreds.

The proposed meet will fit in very nicely between the close of the northern tracks and the opening of Winter racing at New Orleans.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE HAS KEPT IN CONDITION BY DAILY WORKOUTS

By JACK DEMPSEY

(Heavyweight Champion of the World)

Some folks may have the idea that I am not fighting. I've never permitted a day to pass since I battled Georges Carpentier that I haven't performed some exercises designed to keep me tuned up. And all the while I've watched my physical self with the thought ever present that I may be called hurriedly into the ring to defend my title.

All my life—that is, all my fistic life—I've never been far away at any time from the pink of condition. I guess that's because my greatest pride always has been in feeling fit. It wasn't hard to accomplish the trick through 1918, 1917 and 1918, because I was fighting enough than to keep me on edge.

Since then there haven't been many fights for me. Three rounds against Miske, twelve against Brennan and four with Carpentier—that's been my portion of ring work since July, 1919. But there's been no laying. Each day I have gone through a number of exercises that are designed to keep me right. And all that stage work of mine has really been conditioning work.

While I was on the long road tour I used to box from six to twelve rounds daily—and they were at a fast clip. Worked almost as hard in those stage bouts as I do for my regular training. Always did like to mix it and whether it's in the ring, in training or simply on the stage, I go into it with both hands and both feet.

At odd moments, when laying off, I've always aimed to do some stiff work. Running two to five miles in the mornings has ever been a favorite conditioning stunt. Like to do it. Gives a fellow lots of pep and a hungry appetite for breakfast. And, best of all, it strengthens my breathing, which is ever a help to health.

I'm watching my diet closely. But it doesn't require an awful lot of watching. Simply reason. I always did like the good wholesome foods which make good blood, build up the muscles and keep one healthy. Never cared much for the dainty stuff. So there's nothing really hard in the job of sticking to the plain, strengthening fare.

All the time I've been living with the idea that next week or next month I may be called to jump into the ring. If it comes, it won't find me unprepared. For each day of my regular training. Always did like to mix it and whether it's in the ring, in training or simply on the

HAVERHILL HIGH LOSES TWO OF ITS STARS

By FRED C. LANE.

The jinx which has followed many promising schoolboy nines, pursues Haverhill High. Its influence on the players causes doubt of a championship.

Captain Leon Sargent, pitching ace last year, is below in his studies. Arthur Parizon, first baseman and leading stick artist of the 1921 team, cannot find time to devote to baseball this year. That means two gaping holes for Coach Joseph Harrington to fill.

* * *

These two boys were supposed to be the main cogs in the Haverhill machine, and were counted upon to be the chief instruments to send the team through the sixteen scheduled games successfully.

* * *

There is plenty of material, such as it is, but none looks good enough to fill the shoes of these two stars. The practice has been confined to the gymnasium, and Coach Harrington has devoted the most of his time to the battery candidates.

Frederick Roberts, Horace Lacey, Leroy Hinchcliffe, Norman Darbe, Edwin Towne, Hyman Mastrosky and Edward Foss served on Coach Bill Broderick's football team, but are inexperienced in baseball. All are aspirants for the pitching berth.

For catchers there are Kenneth Stanwood, last year's regular backstop, Peter Orlawski, Lester Looke, John Donovan, Frank White and Leon Bloomfield.

White and Bloomfield have had experience in handling fast shoots and curves, but the rest of the squad needs tutoring.

Barbe played first base last season, and will be at that position again, provided he is not needed in the box.

Sumner Tilton, captain last year, will be at the middle bassack. Anbold Horch, captain-elect of the eleven, will play the short field. Peter Hocke will be stationed at the hot corner. All new veterans who showed ability in making Haverhill a winner last season.

The outfield will be taken care of by Harold Levett, John Sullivan and John O'Brien, all did service in the gardens last year and nothing but a setback in their studies will hinder them from having the positions again.

Only the battery men have practiced and consequently little is known of the abilities of the new candidates for the vacant positions.

The only new teams on the schedule are Salem and Danvers. Manager Wallace Sayer announces the list as follows, the games not specified to be at Haverhill:

April 18—Amesbury.
April 28—At Lowell.
April 29—Pinkerton at Andover.
April 29—At Danvers.
May 11—At Keene, N. H.
May 13—At Manchester, N. H.
May 18—Lowell.
May 20—Lowell.
May 25—Nashua.
May 27—Lawrence.
May 31—Danvers.
June 3—Manchester.
June 7—Salem.
June 10—At Lawrence.
June 16—At Salem.
June 17—At Wakefield.

The afternoon sessions, now the rule at Quincy High, will hamper the baseball team to some extent. Frankin Mitchell, who is coaching the nine for the second year, is compelled to work his players two sessions daily.

* * *

Despite this handicap the prospects for a strong team are bright. The squad, which has been working out at Merrymount, has a number of fifty-six candidates, including several veterans.

Jerry Hughes, considered the best southpaw in that district, is with the squad and Coach Mitchell looks for a big year for him. Bill Smith and Hallorin will assist Hughes.

Harold McLeod, Bill Anderson and Oswell are the leading candidates for backstop. In the outfield will be Captain Randall, Lawrence MacQuarrie and Ted Guiran. Jack Thompson is the best looking man for shortstop. Some of the new candidates are Mashelson Jacobson, Van Ostieh, Barstow and Troupe.

* * *

Coach Wilson will handle the team for the outdoor season and will have a dual meet with Wrentham. Quincy will also enter many in the Harvard Intercholastic meet on May 26.

BRAVES ON LAST LAP OF SPRING TRAINING

By NICK FLATLEY.

Charleston, S. C., April 3.—The Braves, in as good condition as any team should be at this season of the year, started their final week of preliminaries by tackling the Senators here today. Games will be played every day, including Sunday, and the seven clashes should from the athletes out for the opening.

The boys are all pretty low just now as they have been through a pretty severe flock of real hard work. The Mitchell system is to get everybody in shape quickly, and two sessions a day under the Florida sun, fitted in perfectly. Lack of pep isn't worrying the manager or Trainer Neary even slightly.

The old life, as they say, will come back in a hurry and as soon as the club hits a few cool days. Nobody in the outfit has even shivered in almost a month, and that stretch of forridity is plenty.

There's sure to be some cold weather between now and April 12 and the sight of real rain will be quite a rarity. Life without stormy days now and then grows monotonous.

Owner Grant and Manager Mitchell are ready to start the season with a bang and are looking forward to a successful start in the campaign. A few defeats by the Senators last year rattled the bosses for the game don't count till the little of next week. Trying out young infielders has contributed to the various disasters.

Speaking of youngsters reminds us that Richard Rudolph emerged from his Saturday workout without any aches or pains and is now confident that he will wear the Braves uniform into battle once more.

Manager Mitchell was agreeably surprised by the bald pated veteran's performance and it will not make him a bit sore if little Dick can step out once in a while.

"A pitcher like Rudy," he explains, "doesn't need much stuff. He knows the batter's weakness at the time and can put the ball anywhere he wants. You never have to worry about those wasted efforts that even some of the best pitchers make, when Dick is in there.

• • •

"It would be a great boost for the team to have him available once a week, or for use in emergencies. He was the greatest pitcher in a pinch I've ever seen, and I've looked 'em all over. When his arm didn't tighten up Saturday, I was convinced that the soreness that kept him on the bench last season had gone. I plan to keep Rudy busy in three quite a lot this Summer."

And Fred is no optimist when he looks forward to baseball Managers get so many hits and surprises that they naturally see the gloomy side of things.

Outfielder and Miller were ready to work today with Conley and Brax ton in reserve. It was Erickson and Walters, according to sensational advance plans.

The teams spend two more days in South Carolina, play one tomorrow at Columbia and Wednesday at Greenville. The tourists hit Greensboro, N. C., Thursday and Lynchburg, Va., the day following. They arrive Saturday in Washington and conclude the series with a Sunday game.

• • •

The Braves play Jack Dunn's Baltimore team, Monday then hop to Lititz to get a complete day of rest before pulling up the curtain.

And by that time they'll need it.

RED SOX BLANK MILWAUKEE BREWERS

Dodge and Ferguson Do Good Work in the Box for Duffy's Clan

Carutherseville, Mo., April 3.—The Red Sox have won another game, but this doesn't count any more than the victories over the Pirates. They defeated the Milwaukee Brewers two to nothing. Duffy's men took delight in walking when the American League expanded Hugh was sentenced to the city made famous by a concoction much to his disgust. So he has been sore ever since and he intends to get even. He is ignored the opportunity.

After the game the Red Sox rushed to the train for they had an all night ride to get to Greensburg where they played today against St. Joe. They had to go to Nashville at 1 to go to Memphis and Atlanta. Then they have to backtrack to Nashville to get to Chattanooga, according to sensational advance plans.

ABE FRIEDMAN CARDED TO BOX FRANKIE CURRY

New York, April 3.—Abe Friedman, New England boxing champion, will have Frankie Curry as an opponent in a ten-round bout here tonight. Friedman rules a betting favorite as a result of his recent victory over Frankie Jerome. The last named won thirty-nine straight fights up to the time he was beaten by Friedman. Abe will be matched to meet either Pete Herman or Joe Lynch, on April 10, if he wins tonight.

Ty, redivivus, still holds the top of the ladder among the fielders.

After all these seventeen years of strenuous endeavor, the great leader of the Tigers still figures the best ball player among the centre fielders with Tris Speaker, his perennial rival, a close second. The dope indicates that, in attacking power, Cobb still is the leader, and perhaps will be so long as he is spurred as he now is by the leadership of the team.

Two years Speaker outfigured Cobb by a few points; then Tyrus returned to his old position—and still holds it in spite of all assaults. Speaker, of course, leads him in defensive work, on his ground cover ing ability and his throwing; but in attack Cobb remains supreme.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

Have you stopped to think that there must be something very substantial and sound and deep-rooted about the modern betterment in business, seeing that conditions have remained unshaken despite many unsettled and uncertain developments?

Is there not encouraging significance, too, in the fact that stock prices and bond prices start the second quarter of the year at the best level attained either this year or last year?

* * *

What, do you ask, are some of these unsettled and uncertain factors?

The largest coal strike the nation has ever known has been launched, the consequences of which no mortal can gauge.

The whole business world is in the dark as to what tariff legislation will be passed by Congress and also as to when it will be passed, a fact that is restraining activities in many directions.

Washington's soldier bonus tactics have kept the financial and business community guessing and worried.

Impending reductions in railway rates also are respected unfavorably in operations for future requirements.

The serious unexpressed strike against New England cotton mills and the possibilities of its spreading to woolen mills, in linking with the natural movement of trade in the various important lines of merchandise directly affects business.

Notwithstanding the appreciable advance in prices reflected by index numbers, uncertainty as to further prices may move in the next few months is acting as a brake in quite a few directions.

As to how foreign trade will shape itself from now on, opinions differ widely, with hesitancy and uncertainty the predominant notes.

In the highest circles of the month's economic conference at Genoa is awaited with keen interest, but no responsible authorities feel they can predict what will happen, whether freely tangible and visible results will be achieved or the whole conference end in desultory talk.

Last week's collapse in German marks to the lowest quotation ever recorded increased uneasiness here and abroad over the outlook for that pivotal country.

France's attitude toward reparations continue to excite apprehension in international circles.

Further uncertainty has been injected into the European situation lately by intimation that Britain's powerful Prime Minister contemplated resigning, a step which would produce at least temporary confusion and alarm.

* * *

Yet, in the face of all this, what do we find?

Practically every important business weather sign points to distinct, though not drastic, improvements in conditions and activity.

For example:

Railway traffic has expanded very materially during recent months, until it now compares satisfactorily not only with one year ago but two years ago.

Iron and steel production and new orders have improved quite remarkably. Contrasted with the low point touched last year, both output and orders have at least doubled.

Unemployment has decreased at a season when an unprecedented increase was feared.

The automobile industry has enjoyed almost a boomlet this year.

Equipment companies have received from the railroads more business in the last quarter than they received during the whole of 1921.

Our agricultural population are this Spring buying more implements and in other ways manifesting the improvement which higher prices for their products has meant to them.

Building is going at more than twice the rate of a year ago, and when wages are readjusted to meet conditions a building boom is looked for.

Those who live far from Wall Street and make no handy reckoning toward it are likely to overlook the significance of recent stock market movements. No one who tries to analyze the business outlook should, however, ignore the extent of the advance which has been registered by security prices. New high levels have been attained by stocks as well as bonds notwithstanding very moderate buying by the general public.

The stock market record is more upright than wrong in anticipating the trend of business, and the movements reveal very clearly that it is the consensus of the shrewdest financial and business minds in the country that we are entering a period of distinct betterment in business. A superabundance of reasonably cheap money—rates last week touched down to the lowest level in years—is, of course, partly responsible for the rise in securities; but this same superabundance of money is an important factor making for expansion of enterprise and activity in all lines of industry.

One more consideration should be noted, namely, the barrenness of shelves in nearly all lines. Hand-to-mouth buying has been the rigid rule ever since the "consumers' strike" made itself felt. It would seem, therefore, take any abnormal increase of demand from consumers to have immediate and pronounced effect all along the line from the retailer to manufacturer and to raw material markets.

* * *

All things considered, business is giving a tolerably satisfactory account of itself.

High Record Sugar Shipments

Sugar shipments from Cuba ports continue at high record figures according to the Federal Sugar Refining Company. In one week sales totaled 600,000 bags. New receipts at ports for the March 25 week aggregated 172,314 tons, as compared with 140,548 tons in the corresponding week of last year. The movement in the interior is also very heavy.

Cuba's improved condition is indicated by the increase in all exports at the beginning of this year, as compared with those at the corresponding date last year. Exports from Cuba to the United States for January, 1922, were $12,563,000, as compared with $13,970,000 in January last year.

Stocks Close Strong in Million-Share Market; Money 4½%; Exchange Rises

U. S. STEEL LED A GENERAL ADVANCE

Equipments and Motors Close Behind; Oils Climb and Rails Make Small Gains

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor

Stocks closed strong in New York, final sales being near the highest for the day, although many traders took profits in the last hour. It was the most active session of this year, sales exceeding a million shares before the close. U. S. Steel and Studebaker were features, the last named advancing five points before the close. Both were the early leaders but steels supplanted them. Equipments and motors were close behind. Rails made small gains as a rule. The oil rate dropped to 4½ per cent. late in the day.

Strength and activity characterized the market during the morning when gains ranged as high as four points and declines were few and small. Outside orders to buy were initiated in quantity over Sunday, the public showing more interest in speculation. Labor's obtaining factor was short covering on an extensive scale. Sentiment in Wall Street is bullish. The 5 per cent. bond rate does not appear to dampen it in the least. The most encouraging business report still came from the iron plants are now operating at 75 per cent. of capacity.

Trading was broad as well as active and the upward movement was general, the largest gains being in Coppers lagged to the last, however. The demand for red metal has not been up to expectations. Early afternoon record high prices had been established by Pacific Oil, Allied Chemical and Lima Locomotive. Many issues sold at their highest for this year or since 1920. Those to make largest gains were Kelsey Wheel, Associated Oil, Mexican Petroleum, Crucible, Republic Steel, Nova Scotia Steel, Pierce Arrow, Studebaker, Baldwin, California Packing, American Tobacco, Computing Tabulating and Vanadium. All were up more than two points. So was U. S. Steel, which was the real leader. It was up 2⅝ at 97¼ in the afternoon, the highest price for more than a year.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent. Foreign exchange was strong despite nervousness in Europe over the Cannes conference.

Higher Prices and Breadth to Trading

By W. S. COUSINS

Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 3.—The stock market was comparatively active today, and the tendency was upward. It went along from a broadening demand for practically all classes of investment securities, and active trading the market went to new high levels for the current move and for the year to date. As matter of fact some of the prices made today are the highest recorded since the bull market of 1920.

From almost every point of the business and financial world, which is considered fields, which were orderly if not active, good news flooded the market on Sunday. A particularly bullish feature of market letters were sent out by the big commission houses to their customers over the week end and those had the effect of inducing new buying by many speculators who fear to miss their market.

The most optimistic sentiment originated with the steel and the motor industries, the stocks of which without apparent difficulty went through to higher prices. Baldwin leader of equipments, has unfilled orders in excess of $10,000,000 and almost daily is receipt of new orders. The oil stocks came into prominence under the lead of Mexican Pete with the usual line of bullish statements which were concerned not only with oil production, but with Mexican affairs in general. Reports are persistent that the new government will recognize the Obregon regime and that the external debt of Mexico will be liquidated.

Liberty Bonds Are in Good Demand

By MUNROE ROBERTS,
Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 3.—The bond market was unusually strong and active today, prices of all classes of investment securities showing rising tendency, Liberty bonds were in good demand.

The Morgan syndicate announced that the $60,000,000 New York Central 5 per cent. issue has been oversubscribed. Allotments will be made tomorrow. The new bonds were traded in on the Curb on a "when issued" basis and rose from 94¾ to ....

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY

New York, March 29, 1922.

The Board of Directors have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. (1½%), April 15th, 1922, to preferred stockholders of record at the close of business April 7th, 1922.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

LOCAL MARKET IS FIRM AND NARROW

Ventura at a New Record High; Price Changes Small; Curb More Active

While prices were up on Boston exchange all the morning, the local market was fairly active. Ventura was the early feature, advancing 1¼ to 22½, its record highest price. Coppers were heavy on the whole, being affected by an unsatisfactory statement of the metal market, where some sellers are cutting prices in the effort to obtain trade. Rails and packing issues were firm and showed little change. Fluctuations, in fact, were narrow for stocks in general. Carson Hill was active and a shade lower. Boston & Maine 1) advanced 1 point to 54 in the first sale. Other forenoon changes were fractional, whether up or down.

The Boston & Maine 4½s in the afternoon, Boston Elevated advanced 1½, Boston & Maine 1, Boston & Maine C 1½, Boston & Maine D 2 and Union Twist Drill 1½, while small gains were made by National Leather, Warren Brothers and Mexican Investment. Issues to show a point loss or its equivalent were: Massachusetts Gas, Osceola, Boston Elevated preferred and United Drug.

CURB MARKET ACTIVE.

While the Curb was more active than during last week, it's trading was confined to a few stocks. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Crystal, Mutual, Pittsburg Silver and Verde Mines. After a weak opening the market improved. It was irregular until 11 o'clock, when gains ranged 1-16 at 1⅛. Three Metals 1 cent at 9½ cents and Verde Minus 1 cent at 43 cents. Among declines were Boston & Montana 6 cents at 23 cents, Mutual 1 cent at 19 cents, and First National 3 cents at 70 cents. Bagdad had recovered an opening loss of a cent.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, April 3.—News favored the bulls in all today, and prices advanced easily under scattered buying. The market suggested a solid out condition. Seaboard advices were that export demand was picking up on wheat. Coarse grains developed strength and followed wheat higher.

The advance of two pence in the Liverpool future market was the only stimulating factor. Private forecast was for generally unsettled conditions over the Winter wheat belt.

Corn had an undercurrent of strength, the movement from the interior being too inadequate to meet demand for offerings on spot was reflected with prices firm. Elevator interests again bought moderate quantities of oats, while commission houses took to the market. Cash oats were in moderate demand.

Provisions advanced under scattered buying. Trade was quiet.

Opening prices were: Wheat—May, 1.32⅝ to 1.32¾; July, 1.24⅜ to 1.24½; Sept., 1.21¼ to 1.21⅜. Corn—May, 57¾ to 58; July, 61⅛ to 61¼; Sept., 62¾ to 62⅞. Oats—May, 36¼ to 36⅜; July, 39¼; September, 40⅝. Pork —July, 18.00.

TODAY'S LIST OF TITLES IS A NOVELTY

Practically All Are One-Word Affairs; Contest Is Nearly Half Completed

By the Test Editor.

Today's List of Titles in the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test is somewhat of a novelty in that, with three exceptions, the titles are "one-word" affairs. It will be interesting to observe the success of contestants with a List of Titles constructed so soberly.

Watch your step! This looks like one of the easy ones, and probably it is.

Our contest is nearly half over. Test Drawing No. 30 will be printed tomorrow. After tomorrow, and until the Test approaches No. 60 and the end, there will be little printed here except the Test Drawing and its accompanying List of Titles. No statement, comment or "story" by the Test Editor to distract you. Nothing but the daily problem and such replies to correspondents as may be of general interest.

If you have any questions to ask that are not answered by the Rules of the Test—you have, of course, supplied yourself with a copy of the rules—write to the Title Test Editor, Boston American, No. 30 Summer Street, Boston (8), Mass. Please inclose a self-addressed envelope.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Sir:

In today's edition of the Boston American you make the following statement in connection with the Test:

"The point is that you need not concern yourself about the history of the title. It is not necessary to know a thing about the book, play or poem back of it. Mr. Artist takes the one, two, three or more words of the title and draws a picture to illustrate or indicate that title."

Am I to understand from the above that in case of the name of a person (I note that several such appear in today's List of Titles) it would not be necessary to know anything of the biography of the person?

That is, if the title of today's picture or any other picture was "Longfellow," would it be possible to pick the title without knowing anything about the man just from the name itself?

My chief reason for the above question is the fact that in the Book Title Test there were several instances of this nature ("Ulysses" and "Homer," for example), yet in both these cases it was necessary to know something of the life and history of the individual in order to pick the title. H. G. H.

Yes; but it was NOT necessary to have read the novel called "Ulysses" or the book of poems called "Ulysses." I have said one thing and you appear to be reading something into my statement. Permit me to repeat that "it is not necessary to know anything about the BOOK, PLAY OR POEM back of the title." The title I am using—including those the artist is illustrating—are selected from Bartlett's "An Index to Familiar Quotations." According to the Index, "Longfellow" is a poem by James Whitcomb Riley. Please do not go to the trouble of looking for it. If Mr. Artist were given that title to illustrate he would do so without reference to the Riley poem. A likeness of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow would serve his purpose or, perhaps, the picture of an exceptionally tall man.

"Longfellow," by the way, is not the Correct Title of any Test Drawing.

THE CAT COMES BACK.

Dear Sir—

On March 24 I was in Boston and secured a copy of the Famous Titles Test drawings at your office. Imagine my surprise and joy upon comparing the pictures with those I had cut from the Boston American. I noticed a difference in line No. 15's.

In the picture I brought from Boston with me there is the figure of a black cat between the post and the small tree. The drawing I cut from the paper on March 17 shows the post and the tree, but is minus friend cat.

Please tell me which of these pictures to use in selecting a title.

Providence, MRS. E. J. A.

The "cat" in the repeat of No. 15 promises to be as famous as the picture "As it was in the beginning," in the comic book line. For three days I have been advising everyone to overlook, disregard, pay no attention to, that "cat." It isn't a cat at all, by the way, but a murder of printers' ink. Hasn't anybody got a bootjack?

M. I. C. of Webster, is informed that while the Test Editor finds his communication interesting he cannot find room at this stage of the entertainment for letters built upon assisted titles. That sort of thing is proper enough after No. 60 has been printed and when we begin re-printing the pictures and announcing their correct titles. At this time, however, such letters would only be confusing.

Film Slumming Party Mishap Results in Injuries to Mabel Ballin

ACTING for the movies is not all pink teas and ball room scenes. Mabel Ballin found out that seeing a number of a movie slumming party hair's breadth drawbacks. Seventy days after she was working in a scene in which a maiden of thieves figured largely.

Mabel Ballin

She and the leading man, Irving Hilliard, had rehearsed the scene in which they executed a flight of stairs leading up to the den.

The scene had been "shot" once, and they were waiting for the call for the retake. When Mr. Ballin, the director called, "Ready! Lights! Cameras!" they started up the stairs once more. There was a hooting crash and the entire structure came down, actors and all. They landed at the bottom feet. Mr. Hilliard was badly shaken up, while Miss Ballin was cut about her face and her right ankle crushed was wrenched. After a rest in her dressing room she insisted on going on with the work. She will take a few days off, however, and recover from the shock.

WHALING INDUSTRY FILMED

THE good ship Gaspe, according to Undersecretary Richard Cufton and his company, who are filming whaling stories on board, is now off the coast of Liberia, where she is sweeping the Caribbean Sea in order to locate the late Winter "cow pasture" of the North Atlantic whales.

Mr. Cufton is working in conjunction with the Dartmouth Historical Society of New England, the Museum of Natural History of New York, and other national organizations devoted to historical research. "Down to the Sea in Ships," the title of the film, will be in twelve reels and will give, in dramatic sequence, something of an historic document of the whaling industry. The original film will be presented to the Dartmouth Society of New Bedford, Massachusetts.

PAULINE FREDERICK GOES WEST

PAULINE FREDERICK was glimpsed briefly in Chicago Saturday when she passed through on her way to Los Angeles to begin filming her forty-first picture, Robertson-Cole production and closes up her home, prior to sailing for the London opening of the Woods play in which she stages her return to the footlights world.

HOW TO GET THIN.

HEALTH COMMISSIONER COPELAND'S reducing exercises for "famous forty days" last season has started something. A film picture of "How to Get Thin" will be a feature of the program of a New York motion picture theatre this week. The theme of reducing can be called a theme—with be treated in a melodious way as well as humorously.

BETTY COMPSON BUSY.

Betty Compson

HERE'S finished "Over the Border," in which she co-stars with Monte Blue, Betty Compson is busy assembling scenes for her next production. "The Hooded Woman," which is from a story by Charlotte Johnson Wilson.

Meanwhile preparations are be made for the next George Fitzmaurice picture, which will be adapted from Mary Johnston's celebrated novel, "To Have and to Hold." Miss Compson will be one of the two stars of the film. The man to have the leading role with her has not yet been picked. Nita Bercere, who is Mrs. Fitzmaurice, is working on the continuity. Some years ago Famous Players made a picture of "To Have and to Hold," which was considered a great success.

METRO BUYS A STORY

THE Metro Corporation has announced that "The Death Wake," a Swedish production, which they will distribute in this country in the near future. This film has been shown in many parts of Europe, where it has invariably created a great deal of comment. There is a magnificence and a sincerity about Swedish films that is unusual, though the acting and photography are perfection for the most part—to cure. It will be interesting to see how they have progressed in this, a new picture.

GLORIA SWANSON TO SAIL.

GLORIA SWANSON is the first to start the Spring drive. In May and June the motion picture stars pull up stakes and go abroad for more or less well-deserved vacations. This year Miss Swanson is the first to announce her determination to join the colony overseas. She is booking passage for the latter part of the month.

O'BRIEN LEAVES SELZNICK

IT will seem strange not to see the Selznick trade mark on the films of Eugene O'Brien's films. That star, who has upheld the Selznick standard for the past three years, has fulfilled his contract with that firm and, by mutual agreement, it has not been drawn up again. Mr. O'Brien's plans for the future are still indefinite.

JEWS PLEDGE HUB TO LEAD IN RELIEF

Recitals of Kin's Plight in Europe Stirs Two Big Meetings

The cries of suffering from 300,000 orphans and countless old men and women, homeless in the war zones of Europe, echoed in the ears of Boston's Jewry, when graphic word pictures of their plight were drawn by eye witnesses at two big meetings in the interest of the Jewish War Relief drive.

The emotions of the hundreds of the city's leading Jews were aroused to fever pitch, weeping in unison they jumped to their feet and pledged that Boston should not only participate in the appeal, but that this city—the hub to a world—should be the first in per capita donation to the cause.

The meetings were held at the Elysium Club, Huntington avenue, and in the Somerset Hotel, where Lieutenant James H. Becker of Chicago, Judge Harry M. Fisher of Chicago, Louis Marshall of New York and Felix M. Warburg of New York, were the guests of honor at the Century Club, an organization of Boston's Jewish professional men.

DRIVE STARTS 19TH.

The Greater Boston Jewish war relief appeal, it was announced, will begin on April 19 and will continue until May 1. The drive for the Bay State quota of $1,150,000 will be nonsectarian and prominent Christian women of every faith will act as aids.

The deplorable condition of the Jews of Eastern and Central Europe were told at both the conference and dinner by Lieutenant Becker, who recently returned from Eastern Europe, where he was director of the Jewish relief work. Judge Fisher, who returned last month from eight teen months' service in Russia in the same capacity, Louis Marshall, chairman of the American Jewish committee, and Felix Warburg of New York, head of the joint distribution committee, which disburses all funds collected in the drives in America.

"When I speak of hospitals," said Lieutenant Becker, "I don't mean the comfortable modern institutions in these in Boston. I mean cold, dreary places filled with typhus-ridden men with no fuel to warm them and the windows sealed—so cold that I, wrapped in furs, shivered.

"When I speak of beds I don't mean the immaculate metal cots that in your hospitals. I mean wooden horses, across which are stretched bare boards with matting—consisting of gunny sacks filled with straw —no pillow cases, no sheets—and no disinfectants. The little ones obey their animal instincts and huddle together to keep warm somewhat. Oh, the horror of it all—I could not stay five minutes at a time in these buildings.

OVATION FOR MARSHALL.

Judge Fisher told of a great grave he had visited in the Jewish cemetery at Proskurov, in the Ukraine, in which scores of men, women and children, victims of Petlura's banditti and pogrom makers, had been buried, and the oath he took at the grave never to rest until relief had been brought to the afflicted people of Europe. He begged his hearers to share that pledge with him.

A great ovation was given to Louis Marshall, who was the next to speak. His address was an inspiring message to Boston Jews to comfort the sufferings of Israel and wipe away its tears.

Felix Warburg said that disintegration of the Jews of Eastern Europe has taken a frightful toll among the Jews, according to recent investigations.

Mr. Louis E. Kirstein, chairman of the New England appeal, who presided, said that it was the duty of every Jew to calls himself and feels himself a Jew, of every Jew who can hear or who can know of the terrible conditions of our people in Europe to respond to this appeal.

Food Profiteering

District Attorney O'Brien Should Push Investigation to the Limit and Punish the Guilty

District Attorney O'Brien has been probing the prices of food in our foodshops lately. The purpose of the investigation is to determine

1—Whether or not the prices are unreasonably high.

2—Whether or not any violation of the law has been involved in making these unreasonable charges.

The raw material which enters the food served at our restaurants has fallen about 25 per cent., so we are informed. But there has been no such reduction in the price of food charged to the patrons of these restaurants. The District Attorney is trying to discover if there is any reason for keeping up the price of food when the price of things that food is made of has fallen so far. He is also trying to find out through the Grand Jury investigation whether there has been any combination between the restaurant keepers or any other act for the purpose of keeping up the price of food which violates our law.

We judge from the witnesses who are observed in the waiting room outside the Grand Jury that a large number of the best-known restaurants and chain lunchrooms are involved in this investigation.

Since Mr. O'Brien started the investigation there has been a noticeable decline, not only in some of the prices, but in the portions served.

We hope that Mr. O'Brien will continue this investigation until he knows definitely what the facts are; and that if there has been any profiteering which involves a violation of the law, he will enforce the penalty.

The Wife's Voting Place

No Reason Why She Should Not Be Allowed to Register in Different Section From Husband

There is a bill before the Legislature allowing wives to register for voting in a separate place from the registration of the husband. This, of course, is in the line of progress. There is no reason why a woman should not choose her place of residence as freely as the husband.

This will eventually, in all probability, lead to the husband's choosing his place of business as his place of voting, while the wife will choose the place where the children are, where they go to school, where, in fact, they live, as her place of voting.

The wife wants to know how the schools her children are attending are being operated. She wants to know what kind of a Board of Health is keeping the city clean and healthful for her family. She wants to make sure that the garbage is being properly removed, that the streets are made safe for her children. She usually owns the home, and she wants to see that tax rate is not unnecessarily high. The husband, of course, is interested in all these things, but he is engrossed in the place where he works.

In Fever of Apprehension

Britain, by the Arrest of Gandhi, May Have Aimed to Precipitate an Immature Outbreak

A dispatch to London from the British capital in India says that the British are hurrying troops to India and distributing them in a fever of apprehension concerning the time and place where the organizing Indian Revolutionists will strike.

The extraordinary power and influence of Gandhi, who has preached to the people of India the doctrine of non-violence, has held them in restraint so far and kept them resisting British oppression by such methods as we used when we boycotted the British goods before the Revolution and dumped their tea overboard. But the arrest of Gandhi puts fear in the British officialdom that violent revolution may break out instantly.

It may very well be that the arrest of Gandhi was for the purpose of precipitating an immature outbreak. The British officials may have suspected that under the cover of non-violence Gandhi was merely securing a postponement of violence until India was ready to fight. It is no easy task to organize for revolutionary purposes three hundred million people whose schools have been destroyed by their oppressor and the great majority of whose people have been made illiterate and kept illiterate for the purpose of rendering them quite helpless in just such an emergency as is now approaching.

However, India is many miles away from the home of her oppressor, and she composes one-fifth of the human race. She has an ancient culture. She is not a barbarous or uncivilized nation. Her intellectual classes are leading the movement against British imperialism, and her peasants and workmen are so devoted to the cause of liberty that in one place ten thousand of them spontaneously lay down across a track to compel a British military train to stop.

We do not recall an instance in history where, under the leadership of the educated classes, a united people under conditions such as in India have not won their liberty.

Fire Insurance Rates

Boston's High Pressure Service Should Reduce Charges, as It Reduces the Danger From Fire

It will be a fine thing for the growth and prosperity of Boston if Mayor Curley succeeds in his project to have the fire insurance rates cut in this country.

Even on the face of it, at least, there seems to be no reason in the world why our high pressure system should not greatly reduce the insurance rates because they reduce the danger of fire. Insurance rates against fire ought to vary, of course, with the risk, being greater as the risk is greater and less as the risk is less.

Everything which contributes to lower the risk of destruction by fire lowers the risk which the insurance company takes on the property involved, and therefore ought to lower its charge for taking the risk. This is elementary logic and business sense. But logic does not generally control charges. It generally goes by the old rule of thumb that "They shall take who have the power and they shall keep who can."

IF today is your birthday you should be a mature which will bring as much if not more happiness to others than to yourself. You are in fact one of those generous and idealistic people who are often imposed on by a materialistic world.

You are naturally enthusiastic and hopeful, and you possess in no small measure the rare quality of instantly recovering when your hopes are dashed by accident or the designs of others.

Temperamentally you are nervous and moody and somewhat given to needless worry over fancied ills. This is because you are gifted with an extraordinary imagination which may either make or mar your life, according to the use to which you put it.

WOMEN DOCTORS BATTLE FOR MEDICAL CO-EDUCATION

LONDON, April 3.—Medical co-education in England is in a precarious position as the result of the decision of London Hospital authorities to refuse further admission to women students.

Women doctors are up in arms and threaten to fight the decision to the bitter end. They assert the step is due to antagonism on the part of men physicians, who are jealous of the progress made by the fair sex in the profession.

Lord Knutsford, chairman of the hospital responsible for the drastic decision, declares that the medical staff advised it because of the difficulties which ous and moody and somewhat given to needless worry over fancied ills. This is because you are gifted with an extraordinary imagination which may either make or mar your life, according to the use to which you put it.

Today insures success in any uncertain action and whatever decision is made will undoubtedly prove valuable. A restless year awaits you, mostly due to your own outlook on your past affairs.

scene would be beneficial, and your business will not suffer in your absence, as you are continually thinking it will.

You will be much better fitted for the fight by a mental relaxation.

A child of today will have much difficulty to face because of its ambition to become famous, but it is written that it will achieve.

Famous persons born today:

Reginald De Koven — musician.

Margaret Anglin—actress.

John Burroughs—naturalist.

Washington Irving—author.

"There are unpleasant subjects which have to be taught to all who wish to take up medicine," he told Universal Service. "To teach these unpleasant but necessary things to either sex alone is possible, but the hospital staff has found difficulty in teaching those things to a mixed audience and do not wish to continue to do so. Minor difficulties have also to be met, and for those reasons the committee considers that we should revert to the old custom of training men only."

Denounced as Jealousy

Women physicians who are taking up the gage of battle—and they number among themselves the most prominent women doctors in the world—point to the success of medical co-education in the United States and declare the decision is in every way unjust.

Dr. Flora Murray, one of the best known women practitioners in Europe, is emphatic in her protest.

"It is not a fact that doctors find difficulty in lecture to mixed audiences," she declares emphatically. "Beneath this excuse is a growing opposition on the part of men in the medical profession to women doctors, who are steadily increasing in numbers. It is because their own supremacy is threatened."

Dr. Louisa Garrett Anderson, one of the first qualified women physicians in England, was equally positive in her assertion that jealousy is the underlying cause of the movement.

"As a matter of fact," she said, "the policy of the London Hospital is dictated by the jealousy of men on the staff against women going into medicine.

"During the war it was convenient for the hospital to have women. Now they have enough men students it is less trouble for them and they are turning women out.

Welcomed During War

"The male hospitals in England, which threw open their doors to women during the war, are now closing, and will gradually close to women.

"If scientific subjects are taught in a scientific manner, there is not one which cannot be taught without the slightest difficulty to students of both sexes. That is not the real reason for the step. It is put forward as a blind. The real reason is the jealousy of the younger medical staff at male hospitals."

"The decision is unfair and unjust," declared Dr. Sloan Chesser. "It sounds pre-war. We did not hear anything about the unpleasant subjects during the war when women had to do so much in the hospitals. A woman is a better wife and mother by reason of a medical education."

Neutral observers of the battle declare that the medical profession is on the verge of a sex war.

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN A PART IN HOME SAVINGS?

If you would make the budget system a success in your home, you should take the children in on it.

Carefully explain the system to them, and what it will result in bringing about, and get them interested in making it come out as you plan.

Merely telling your children of your plan, and that on account of your account system they can or they cannot have this or that, does not satisfy the youngsters.

If you can show the child that the allowance is to be just so much each week, and that each member of the family has a given sum—which should include everything—allotted to them, and a certain sum for the home up-keep, and they could watch the figures and see how things are coming out and plan to act accordingly, it would be interesting to them.

Big Deal in U.S. War Wool

By COL. HUGH J. GALLAGHER, U. S. A.

THE last bale of government owned wool was removed from the Army Base here last week. This terminates one of the largest transactions in which the government was engaged during the war.

The government purchased a total of 874,157,554 pounds of wool at a cost of $478,928,123. Approximately 190,000,000 pounds of this wool was sold to contractors for use in the manufacture of material for uniforms, the balance, 484,000,000 pounds of wool, was sold at public auction. The recovery of this wool amounted to approximately $414,420,687 or 84½ per cent. of the total amount paid for it. This is considered one of the most successful transactions of the War Department in the disposal of surplus supplies, after the war.

The details of this tremendous transaction were handled at the Army Base up to the close of the year 1919 under the supervision of Mr. Albert W. Elliott, and subsequently by myself, at the base in South Boston. The auction was regulated from Washington, and the Secretary of War took an active interest in the business. Through the postponement, by his direction, of several sales, the government made a net gain of over $2,211,000. The advice and disinterested co-operation of the wool dealers of Boston aided greatly in the success of this transaction.

Shortleigh—"I tell you, old chap, marriage changes a man completely. Why, I'm a different man altogether since I married."

Longleigh—"I'm glad to hear that. Perhaps you will now settle that little I O U that I've held against you for a year or more."

Shortleigh—"Oh, dear, no. I couldn't think of settling another fellow's bill."

Wraggly—Yes, I'm working night and day to put the scheme through.

DAUGHTERS DESIRED MOST BY FATHERS

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service.)

JULIAN HUXLEY says that it isn't going to be long before we're going to be able to choose whether to have a son or a daughter.

If that's true, I wonder just how many daughters there will be in the world.

I'll tell you—just as many as there are fathers who can vote on the question.

No—not quite that. There are men who prefer sons to daughters—before they're born. It's the old-world idea of an heir and a successor in business, and there's something sweet and protective about it, too. A man likes to think that if he should die he should leave behind him a son, not only to perpetuate his name, but to protect his son's mother when he, himself, is gone.

Age Works Change

That's all very well for the first year or so, but have you never noticed that a man is particularly fond of his daughters when they get to be seven or eight years old? And when they're seventeen or eighteen—that's the time that Father wouldn't give one of his daughters for half a dozen sons.

Mother is just the other way around. She likes a son the best.

How proud she is of him—she can never get over the wonder of it—that that tall, broad-shouldered, high-headed, opinionated, domineering man—her son, her little baby!

And Son is a good deal more apt to be devoted to Mother than Daughter.

Daughter and Dad—they're the pals—they are the ones with the secrets and the whisperings and the confidences.

And, whisper, here's a strange thing—have you ever noticed it?

I never yet saw a woman jealous of her husband's love for her daughter, but I have seen more than one man jealous of his wife's love for her son. I wonder why?

Work Not Thrilling

Of course, we all know women who work and worry, too, but somehow, in the natural division of things, I don't believe the man has so very much the better of it. He has more pleasure, more interest in life, and he is less tied down as a rule—so people seem to think—to tedious detail.

But, somehow, I never could see much difference between the drudgery of housekeeping and the drudgery of shopkeeping or carpentering or shoeing the horses or mending automobile tires or adding figures in a ledger all day long.

The average man does his day's work because he needs the money, not because he has a thrilling time doing it.

Why shouldn't the average woman look at her day's work in the same rational, sensible, manner-of-fact way? If she did, I believe she'd get a lot more fun out of it.

To the Editor

Reduction of Navy

Editor Boston American:

Naturally the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce is deeply interested in the promotion of the interests of the navy, but we feel that aside from any local interest there is an important question involved in the difference of opinion between the Naval Affairs Committee in the House of Representatives and the Naval Sub-Committee on Appropriations.

The Naval Affairs Committee is urging a personnel of not less than 80,000 while the Appropriations Committee has provided funds for a personnel of 65,000. This means a navy which we believe most Americans will consider too small for a country with the coast line of the United States and not commensurate with the importance of our nation. This difference of opinion raises a question of national policy as to whether we are to have a little navy, as proposed by a committee headed by an Islander, or a treaty navy, as intended by our treaty arrangements with the powers chiefly interested in the promotion of peace.

With the proposed reduction in appropriations, if accepted by Congress, any fleet of consequence on the Atlantic coast will be eliminated. Our understanding is that personnel and funds provided for in the appropriation bill will allow the operation of only twelve of the battleships to which the United States is entitled under the treaty and it would be necessary to concentrate all of these on the Pacific coast.

We feel that the subject warrants discussion prior to the adoption of appropriations.

R. L. COSTELLO,
President Portsmouth, N. H., Chamber of Commerce.

THE LIGHT THAT LIES AND LIES

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

PERHAPS you are old enough to recall a play of a generation ago, before the stage was quite commercialized. It was played by a well-known romantic actor, and was called "The Light That Lies in Woman's Eyes."

Or, perhaps, you know it only by the cynical parody, which added: "Yes—and lies—and lies—and lies!"

The writer recalls a similar yielding to the impulse of mockery in which he indulged as a youth; not meaning to be irreverent, but just "funny" with the unrestraint characteristic of youth.

We were studying, in the class in English Literature, Wordsworth's Ode. Read it now, and compare your own with his limitations of immortality from recollections of early childhood.

When we came to the line, "Heaven lies about us in our infancy," this smart youth could not deny himself the impromptu cleverness of adding; "to be sure it 'lies' about us!"

Respectful Wisdom

However, the respectful wisdom of maturer years has recaptured the original meaning of the poet sufficiently to recommend to you the thoughtful reading of that whole poem. It is about the length of two of these columns, distinctly readable, and full of beauty and of wise suggestions on this subject of universal interest.

Surely, you, too, are interested in Immortality.

Of all the many phases of this subject from whose varied lure none of us can, and few of us care to escape, the one in which Woodsworth specializes in this poem is, perhaps, the most fascinating.

Because it is most intimately bound up with your own experiences.

Doubtless, you have often had the feeling of having met before some person who assures you that this is your first meeting. Or you recall having seen before some place which you know you are now visiting for the first time. Or there is something strangely familiar about certain supposedly new experiences and scenes.

Where have I heard that before? Where have I seen this before? These are common questions.

Quite commonly, too, fond lovers will confess to each other a feeling, partly in play but subconsciously in earnest, that they had met and loved each other in a previous incarnation on the banks of the Nile!

And, of course, the believer in a deathless soul which precedes birth—and persists through seeming dissolution—knows the reason for those more vivid recollections of early childhood.

The ancient Greeks believed that, in Hades, the soul before rebirth drank of the waters of the river Lethe, which assured forgetfulness of the past.

Consonant with that belief, some memories might cling to the mind of the young.

It is a translation of that Hellenic thought that the more spiritual Christian terms which causes Wordsworth to sing so rapturously the poetic verse which is not too familiarly known to forbid reproduction here in the form of prose.

Sleep and Forgetting

"Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting. The soul that rises with us, our life's star, hath had elsewhere its setting, and cometh from afar: not in utter forgetfulness, and not in utter nakedness, but trailing clouds of glory do we come, from God, who is our home.

"Shades of the prison-house begin to close upon the growing boy; but he beholds the light, and whence it flows—he sees it in his joy! The youth, who daily farther from the east must travel, still is Nature's priest, and by the vision splendid is on his way attended.

"At length the man perceives it die away and fade into the light of common day."

Reluctantly, we have the inspiring poem, again urging the reader to make its full acquaintance. And, still more, on occasion to make that deeper self-acquaintance which will provide frequent holydays of the spirit, when "our souls have sight of that immortal sea which brought us hither; can in a moment travel thither, and see the children sport upon the shore, and hear the mighty waters rolling evermore."

As we have said, this is only one aspect, but surely one of the most fascinating aspects of our interest in Immortality.

Surely, it is more spiritual and more worth your while than playing with Ouija boards and table-tippings.

The light that lies within you does not lie! It tells of life eternal, before birth as well as after death. Your own being is an indestructible part of the flow of eternity.

You believe in life after death. Why not in life before birth?

Then make this stage a worthy span between two sections of eternity.
